1.0 Purpose of Report

The purpose of this report is to present the draft Good Relations Strategy 2023 - 2026 for approval.

The draft strategy, which has been developed following an audit of need over a period of 4 months of engagement, identifies the key Good Relations issues and sets the high-level strategic priorities for the development of an action plan to be delivered by the service area to meet local authority legislative requirements.

2.0 Background

Under Section 75 (2) duty of the Northern Ireland Act, local authorities are required 'to have regard to the desirability of promoting good relations between persons of different religious belief, political opinion or racial group',

Each of the 11 Council's avails of financial assistance from The Executive Office's 'District Councils Good Relations Programme' to help resource local authorities in their duty to deliver a local Good Relations Strategy. Historically financial assistance was provided by TEO for up to 75% of costs for delivery of the action plan in each council area. This is made up of both staff and programme costs. However, on 12th May 2023, Council received notification via an EQIA consultation that The Executive Office grant towards the District Council Good Relations programme would be reduced by 47% across all councils for the 23/24 period. The rationale provided was that councils were in a better position than arm's length bodies to absorb such cuts into their own budgets.

The District Council Good Relations Programme remains an important link between high-level strategic priorities as outlined in the Government's T:BUC Strategy and the delivery of community relations activity on a local level.

Whilst the T:BUC Strategy is currently under review, it was identified that the Strategy has been restrictive and there is need to ensure that the Strategy continues to work for all communities and to reflect the needs of all in Northern Ireland society, which has seen much change over the last decade.

The Council Strategy will continue to focus on the 4 key themes as detailed in the T:BUC policy framework as these will be in keeping with the priorities and recommendations established by the Department, the Council and during the course of the audit.

1. Our Children and Young People: To continue to improve attitudes amongst our young people and to build a community where they can play a full and active role in building good relations.
2. Our Shared Community: To create a community where division does not restrict the life of individuals and where all areas are open and accessible to everyone.
3. Our Safe Community: To create a community where everyone feels safe in moving around and where life choices are not inhibited by fears around safety.
4. Our Cultural Expression: To create a community, which promotes mutual respect and understanding, is strengthened by its diversity and where cultural expression is celebrated and embraced.

3.0 Developing the Strategy

In October 2022, The Junction was awarded the contract to conduct an audit and develop a strategy to guide good relations work in the borough for the next three years. The audit findings and the Strategy will be utilised to develop the annual action plan for Council to fulfil their statutory duty to promote good relations within the Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council area.

The methodology to undertake the audit and strategy was designed to target partners, area based communities, specific thematic groupings, elected members and the general public. Workshop-based consultations were organised to include four public, area based / geographical consultations, four thematic discussions, leading to face-to face interviews with community representatives working within TEO's thematic priorities. Strategic partners were also engaged via two existing strategic partner forums and seven elected members took part in individual interviews. 306 individuals in total engaged with the Good Relations Audit.

Consultation findings are contained within the report, however the main findings include:

3.1 Summary Quantitative and Qualitative Good Relations Survey

In the context of the attitudes to good relations, the NILT 2020-21 data set recorded that in Causeway Coast and Glens Borough council area, 43% felt relations had improved in the last 5 years and 40% that they would continue to do so in the next 5 years.

The key findings of audit are:

- The three most common good relations issues identified in the area at this moment are: 1, Sectarianism (80.3%), 2, Cultural diversity (61.8%) and 3, Racism (28%).
- A strong majority (79.6%) of people felt safe in their community, 12.1% did not.
- On whether they felt their identity was respected 52.2% responded Yes.
- On whether their identity was not respected, 31.2% of people who answered this question said sometimes and 16.6% of people said it was not respected.
- Addressing the legacy of the past is really important to 46.5% of those who responded to the question, 42% said it is important. For 10% it is not that important.

3.2 The top 10 key issues arising as a result of consultation and engagement:

1. Shared and/or integrated education.
2. Cross community work.
3. Feeling safe in the area you live in.
4. Local people having an influence and voice in decision making process and civic life.
5. Challenging discrimination (racism, sectarianism).
6. Cultural expression including cultural celebration, language, music, and arts.
7. Justice for the victims and survivors.
8. Paramilitary control.
9. Community Development.
10. Cost of living crisis.

3.3 Key Interventions identified by respondents:

- Work with young people and children including common issues, local neighbourhood work, community education and training could bring people together and contribute to a shared community.
- Addressing the marking of territory.

- Increase understanding in Ulster Scots and the Irish language, cultures and traditions.

4.0 Proposal

A number of key priorities were identified for the development and implementation of the Good Relations Strategy (Annex A). Good relations issues identified are mapped detailing complementarity with other policies, programmes and plans to provide additional capacity building to achieve positive good relations outcomes.

4.1 Key Themes

Community education and training to better understand the dynamic of culture and traditions, good relations and building welcoming communities is the key focus of the Good Relations Strategy. Based on the findings of the audit, the key themes that emerge across the survey and consultations emphasise shared spaces, developing young people, addressing some difficult issues, the need for regeneration and integration, challenging racism, negative attitudes and behaviours and sectarianism and have been set out against the 4 main T:BUC aims.

4.2 Delivery against T:BUC aims:

4.2.1 Children and Young people

Support for children and young people in good relations and in integration work. The strategy proposes greater emphasis through more programmes, projects and services for young people as the next/future generation, via community youth, education and church sectors. The Strategy proposes that young people should be enabled to come together more easily, on a cross community basis, around shared and common interests. The strategy proposes focused projects and educational opportunities to enable young people to develop greater understanding for cultural diversity and equality.

4.2.2 Shared Community

Actions and activities supporting opportunities and programmes that 'bring people together' to provide cross community initiatives/programmes/projects which cater for all age groups around shared /common interests: sports, arts, local history, and nature/environment. Culture, traditions and global diversity have considerable potential to contribute to a shared community. Advocate targeted approaches whereby groups are encouraged and supported to reach beyond their areas, groups and comfort zones.

4.2.3 Safe Community

Safety on the streets for all groups, in particular young people, women and asylum seekers and refugees.

Statutory partners and council leadership are identified as key partners in continuing to support bonfire management and in addressing the marking of territory. Local communities are also critical to resolving these issues.

The integration and safety of asylum seekers, refugees and migrants - who are a small population in the borough, is identified as important. The need to counter negative and extreme views and fears is important. Education on global diversity and how this can enrich lives is identified.

4.2.4 Cultural Expression

Recognition of the importance of creating two-way experiences of diversity in schools, with young people and in communities. The strategy aims to develop ways to address rising tensions of both racism and sectarianism.

The strategy also suggests that through education, an understanding of history and heritage will offer community and museum led opportunities to promote understanding and to address difficult and different narratives.

5.0 Action Plan Development

In line with the District Council Good Relations programme, and using a community planning outcome based approach, an action plan will be developed using the delivery principles and will be programmed under the 4 T:BUC themes.

6.0 Recommendation

It is recommended that council approve the adoption of the proposed Good Relations Strategy for implementation from 2024 – 2027 and that an action plan be developed to be reviewed on an annual basis to ensure that the Good Relations issues are being addressed and local needs are being met.

INTRODUCTION

This report has been commissioned by the Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council in order to conduct an audit and develop strategy to guide good relations work in the borough for the next three years. It will be utilised to develop years 1 to 3 action plans. These will be in keeping with the priorities and recommendations established by the Department, the Council and in the course of the audit. The policy framework set out in Section One outlines the principal regional strategies that will impact on good relations work including Together Building A United Community and the Racial Equality Strategies. In fulfilling the requirement to be evidence-based, the report acknowledges the work of The Flags, Identity, Culture, And Tradition Commission. The Good Relations Indicators 2020 Report and other supporting evidence will inform consideration of the emerging themes and priorities. The key points relevant to the development of the audit and strategy are outlined after each strategy.

Section Two: A Local Perspective: Causeway Coast and Glens outlines the relevant context and details available data specific to the council area. This includes the operational climate, data derived from the 2021 Census, electoral representation on the council and relevant information about formal applications of cultural expression. The key points are also summarised. Attitudes to Good Relations in the Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council Area in comparison to Northern Ireland are explored. In view of the linkage that has developed between good relations and community safety, the issues, strategic plan and reported hate motivated crimes and incidents, the trends and numbers for the borough are detailed. This section concludes with a review of security related incidents.

Section Three: deals with the local planning framework. It reviews the key relevant plans. This includes the Equality Action Plan, A Better Future Together (Community Plan 2017-2030), the Community Development Strategy 2020-23 and the previous Good Relations Audit and Strategy 2018-2023. Again, key points for the development of the audit and strategy summarised.

Complementarity with PEACEPLUS, and other relevant policies and initiatives is required by the Department. Therefore, PEACEPLUS themes, local development strategies and the Equality and Anti-Poverty Action Plans and related regeneration, tourism, towns and villages, heritage, and youth service policies and plans are reviewed in terms of good relations in Section Four.

The final Section draws together the results of the online survey, and face-to-face workshop-based consultations and one to one interviews (in person or online). These include the community based public consultations, the targeted focus groups with asylum seekers and refugees, youth, community relations practitioners, the PCSP and community cohesion partners, and the planning session with strategic partners. Interviews were conducted with seven councillors drawn from six political parties and one independently elected Councillor, and three community representatives including LGBTQ+ representative and are also included in the report of the consultation. These are all detailed separately against T:BUC, relevant linkages to other strategies are identified, and other issues of importance to those consulted are conveyed. The good relations themes emerging from the audit are identified and linked to the policy framework, local perspective and planning context. It is expected that the final strategy will be informed by the outcomes of the previous Good Relations Strategy and value for money considerations. Therefore, the community consultations have also been mapped against the four T:BUC priorities building on the 4th Quarter Report and the proposed 2023 Action Plan. Finally, the recommendations are set out.

POLICY FRAMEWORK

The Protocol on Ireland/Northern Ireland and Good Relations

A recent legal development which relates to good relations is Article 2 of the Protocol on Ireland/Northern Ireland. The Article contains a new commitment by the UK Government to no diminution of certain human rights and equality protections. Specifically, Articles 2(1) and 2 makes the UK responsible that there is no diminution of rights, safeguards, or equality of opportunity under the 1998 Agreement; and that the government will continue to facilitate institutions and bodies to uphold those rights and equality standards.¹

In addition to these developments, the Equality Commission in September 2021 commissioned research on the impact of Brexit on the EU funding provisions for Section 75 equality groups. This research highlighted the important role of EU funding in promoting equality of opportunity and good relations in Northern Ireland in addition to various challenges, raising concerns about the measures outlined by the UK Government to replace EU funding, including a lack of clarity around replacement funds and the serious risk of a financial 'cliff edge' for organisations delivering key services to Section 75 groups.²

In the absence of the Assembly sitting and Executive Committee being established, the Programme for Government (PfG) setting out local priorities has not been finalised.

TOGETHER: BUILDING A UNITED COMMUNITY STRATEGY

The Together: Building a United Community Strategy³ (T: BUC) published by the Executive Office in 2013, outlines a vision of 'a united community based on equality of opportunity, the desirability of good relations and reconciliation – one which is strengthened by its diversity, where cultural expression is celebrated and embraced and where everyone can live, learn, work and socialise together, free from prejudice, hate and intolerance.'

The Strategy reflects the Executive's commitment to improving community relations and continuing the journey towards a more united and shared society. It represents a major change in the way in which good relations will be delivered. It provides a vision based on equality of opportunity, the desirability of good relations and reconciliation. It also acts as a framework for action in dealing with issues concerning intolerance, including sectarianism, racism and seeks to address division, hate and separation.

The following principles underpin the implementation of the Strategy:

- Cohesion
- Diversity
- Fairness
- Inclusion
- Integration
- Interdependence
- Respect
- Responsibility
- Rights
- Sharing
- Tolerance

TBUC: Priorities

The Strategy outlines how Government, community and individuals can work together to build a united community and achieve change against the following key priorities:

1. Our Children and Young People: To continue to improve attitudes amongst our young people and to build a community where they can play a full and active role in building good relations.
2. Our Shared Community: To create a community where division does not restrict the life of individuals and where all areas are open and accessible to everyone.
3. Our Safe Community: To create a community where everyone feels safe in moving around and where life choices are not inhibited by fears around safety.
4. Our Cultural Expression: To create a community, which promotes mutual respect and understanding, is strengthened by its diversity and where cultural expression is celebrated and embraced. ⁴

The District Council Good Relations Programme is an important link between high-level strategic priorities and delivery of community relations activity on a local level and is match funded, with Councils providing 25% of the overall funding for the Programme. The primary aim of the Programme (DCGRP) is firstly, to improve relations between and within Council areas, and secondly, to support local solutions to local good relations issues.⁵

As detailed in the T: BUC District Council Good Relations Programme Report 2017/18, in the Causeway Coast and Glens Council, the programme aims to provide opportunity for civic and community leaders to promote the areas as a model of best practice in developing respect, understanding and tolerance of the cultural, historical, and traditional diversity of the residents.

T: BUC Strategic Review

Since the launch of the T: BUC Strategy in 2013 significant progress has been made and some of the headline actions have been fully achieved. However, the Strategy has at times been found to be restrictive in terms of its interpretation of good relations and failing to include other Section 75 groups such as the disabled. There is further progress to be made and a need to ensure that the Strategy continues to work for all communities and to reflect the needs of all in Northern Ireland society, which has seen much change over the last decade. Officials are therefore conducting a review of the T: BUC Strategy⁶ with the aim of developing an understanding of what has worked well and what areas may require improvement.

GOOD RELATIONS ACTION PLAN, AUDIT AND STRATEGY DEVELOPMENT 2023

The Executive Office has indicated that District Councils Good relations programme (DCGRP) are an important vehicle for promoting reconciliation and building a united community. It is one of the key means of delivering effective good relations interventions. The significance of the DCGRP is noted in the Together: Building a United Community Strategy which states that the DCGRP 'is an important link between the high-level strategic priorities outlined through this strategy and delivery of community relations locally.' This has been reinforced through the Executive's commitment to the full implementation of the Together: Building a United Community Strategy in the Stormont House, Fresh Start and New Decade, New Approach agreements.⁷

The draft Programme for Government (PfG) contains three outcomes which the good relations Action Plan is expected to contribute to:

- We have a safe community where we respect the law, and each other,
- We are a shared, welcoming, and confident society that respects diversity.
- We have created a place where people want to live and work, to visit and invest.

The Good Relations Audit, previous Action Plan outcomes, and other sources will identify evidence-based interventions. The Action Plan is expected to lead to positive good relations outcomes for the hard to reach, marginalised and isolated members of the community, and how it will tackle challenging and difficult issues that would benefit from the application of local good relations interventions. TEO will also expect information about how the projects have been designed and planned, how it will recruit participants, and how it will work in partnership with any other group(s).

Key Priorities

District Councils are asked to submit action plans that are structured around making a significant contribution across each of the T:BUC strategic four key priorities. Each individual programme in the Action Plan should contribute to one or more of the four key aims of the T:BUC Strategy:

- Our Children and Young People
- Our Shared Community
- Our Safe Community
- Our Cultural Expression

In addition, the plan is expected to be evidence based, be focused on outcomes, consider value for money, and indicate areas of complementarity and capacity building.

The complementarity of planned projects with work being conducted through other funded schemes or by other organisations, to achieve positive good relations outcomes. This would include, but is not limited to, activity in the wider community plan, PCSPs and other complementary funding schemes e.g., Minority Ethnic Development Fund (MEDF) and where relevant Urban Villages Initiative (a headline action under the T:BUC Strategy). Peace IV The European Commission will expect Peace programmes to complement the policy objectives of Northern Ireland and Ireland. The Executive Office similarly considers that it is vitally important that there is consideration of and detail in the Action Plan specific opportunities to create synergies between Peace IV and the forthcoming Peace Plus Programme and actions to ensure these are delivered.

⁷ Commissioning Letter: Applications For Funding From District Councils For The Executive Office District Council Good Relations Programme 2023-2024 Action Plan

On a separate intervention the T:BUC Trees initiative seeks to provide opportunities for people from all backgrounds to learn more about the environment in a shared good relations context. All Councils have held T:BUC Trees events in 2022/23 and TEO encourages Councils to build on this delivery in 2023/24.

Key Points For Audit And Strategy Development

- Consultation with hard to reach, marginalised and isolated members of the community and those involved in tackling difficult issues.
- Use outcome information and learning from previous action plan.
- Complementarity and links to other funding initiatives. Structure strategy and recommendations based on evidence and T: BUC four key priorities.

Good Relations: A Legislative Context

Good relations was first introduced into law by Section 75 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998, which requires public authorities to comply with two related yet independent statutory duties. These duties were intended to change the practices of government and public authorities so that equality of opportunity and good relations are central to policy making and service delivery.⁸ The Equality of Opportunity Duty can be found in Section 75(1) of the Act, requiring public authorities in carrying out their functions to have due regard to the need to promote equality of opportunity between a total of nine equality categories.⁹ The Good Relations Duty in Section 75(2) states

'Without prejudice to its obligations under subsection (1), a public authority shall in carrying out its functions relating to Northern Ireland have regard to the desirability of promoting good relations between persons of different religious belief, political opinion or racial group.'

This duty requires that public authorities consider how their policies affect relationships between people of different religions, political opinion and racial group and involves the consideration of ways in which to promote good relations amongst employees, services users, and others. Public authorities must also be proactive in contributing towards a shared society.¹⁰

The statutory duties introduced in Section 75 make equality and good relations central to the full range of public policy decision-making, referred to as 'mainstreaming'. As noted by the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland (herein referred to as the Equality Commission), experience in Northern Ireland and elsewhere shows that issues concerning equality and good relations can easily become side-lined in organisations. Focused attention on mainstreaming addresses this problem by requiring all public authorities to engage directly with equality and good relations issues throughout all stages of policy making and service delivery.¹¹

In addition to the Northern Ireland Act 1998, the Race Relations (Northern Ireland) Order 1997, as amended, places a statutory duty on local authorities to have due regard to the need to promote good race relations and the Fair Employment and Treatment (Northern Ireland) Order

1998, as amended, prohibits discrimination on the ground of race, religious belief, or political opinion. Additionally, the Fair Employment Code of Practice provides guidance for employers regarding their responsibility for ensuring equality of opportunity.¹²

A Working Definition of ‘Good Relations’

It is noted that ‘good relations’ is not defined in legislation. The Equality Commission has therefore developed the following working definition:

*The growth of relationships and structures for Northern Ireland that acknowledge the religious, political, and racial context of this society, and that seek to promote respect, equity, and trust, and embrace diversity in all its forms.*¹³

Promoting good relations may involve proactive steps to challenge issues such as sectarianism and racism, which not only requires monitoring and swift action but also education and training in an effort to promote understanding and change misconceptions. It may also mean the promotion of good relations and engagement both within and between communities in order to try to change not only behaviours but hearts and minds also. Issues involved may range from the display of flags and emblems to the creation of a safe, shared space.

The government’s vision for good relations work can be found in A Shared Future: Policy and Strategic Framework for Good Relations in Northern Ireland (2005), which is complemented by the Northern Ireland Racial Equality Strategy 2015-25. Both documents detail policy objective, priority areas and identify specific actions for both government departments and non-departmental public bodies to take.¹⁴

NORTHERN IRELAND GOOD RELATIONS INDICATORS 2020 REPORT

The Good Relations Indicators Report¹⁵ produced by the Executive Office and NISRA, monitors changes in opinions and attitudes in the four priority areas of the T: BUC Strategy: our children and young people; our shared community; our safe community; and our cultural expression. The latest Northern Ireland Good Relations Indicators Report from 2020, provides some of the following key insights into good relations in Northern Ireland as a whole.

Our Children and Young People

- Forty percent of adults in 2020 and 44% of young people in 2019¹⁶ thought that relations between Protestants and Catholics are better now than they were five years ago. This was a significant decrease of 1% on the 2019 figure and 4% on the 2018 figure for adults, with no significant change in the response from young people.
- Fifty-four percent of young people had ‘done projects’ with pupils from other schools where the pupils were from a different religious background, 52% had ‘shared classes’ and 25% had ‘shared sports facilities or equipment’ with pupils from other schools where the pupils were from a different religious background. These figures represent almost no change with 2019.
- Thirty-five percent of adults think that relations between Protestants and Catholics will be better in five years’ time. This is significant increase of seven percentage points.
- Sixty-three percent of young people in 2019 responded that they feel favourable towards people from Catholic communities; 57% towards people from Protestant communities; and 55% towards people from Minority Ethnic communities. This is significantly lower than the proportion of adults in 2020 who feel favourable towards people from: Catholic communities, 70%; Protestant communities, 69%; and Minority Ethnic communities, 61%. There has been an overall decrease since 2014 in the proportion of adult respondents who feel favourable towards Catholic and Protestant communities (in 2014, each at 84%).
- Sixty-six percent of young people ‘very often’ or ‘sometimes’ socialise or play sport with people from a different religious community. A significantly lower proportion of Catholic young people report this (60%) than Protestant young people (69%) or young people with no religion (70%). There is no significant difference in the proportions of young male people and young female people who report this.

Our Shared Community

- Ninety-one percent of those questioned thought that leisure centres and parks in their area were ‘shared and open’ to both Catholics and Protestants. Ninety-six percent of respondents also thought this about libraries and shopping centres.
- Eighty-nine percent of respondents said that they would prefer a mixed religion workplace, 79% a mixed religion neighbourhood and 69% (in 2019, 61% prefer) mixed religion schools.
- However, since 2019 there have been significant shifts. Since 2019, there has been a significant increase in the proportion of adults who think Catholics and Protestant tend to go to different local shops or use different GP surgeries and other services in their area (35 percentage points, from 23% in 2019 to 58% in 2020) and there was a significant decrease in the proportion of adults who think this does not happen (33 percentage points, from 63% in 2019 to 30% in 2020).

- Since 2013, there has been a significant overall increase in the proportion who think this happens either a little or a lot (34% in 2013; 58% in 2020).
- Since 2019, there has been no significant change in the proportion of those with children at school who think that their child's school is somewhere they can be open about their cultural identity (86% in 2020),
- In the last available year, 63% of schools were involved in shared education with another school in the last academic year. Of those schools who were involved in shared education with another school in the last academic year; 80% had participated in projects; 63% shared resources; 54% have shared classes which are provided other than through the entitlement framework; 37% have shared extra-curricular activities; 33% have shared classes under the entitlement framework; 31% of schools have developed shared policies; 25% shared teachers; 25% share equipment; and 20% have shared education in 'other' ways.¹⁷
- Preference for mixed religion neighbourhoods among all adult respondents is currently 79%. This is significantly lower than the proportion of all adult respondents who prefer to work in a mixed religion workplace (89%). A significantly lower proportion of all adult respondents would prefer to send their children to a mixed religion school (69%) than live in a mixed religion neighbourhood or work in a mixed religion workplace. A significantly higher proportion of those with no religion (78%) would prefer mixed religion schools when compared with Catholic respondents (62%) and Protestant respondents (66%).
- The analysis of first preference applications and admission data indicates that there is an increasing over-subscription to popular post-primary integrated schools.¹⁸

Our Safe Community

- In 2020/21 718 racially motivated, and 674 sectarian hate crimes were recorded. All other categories of hate crimes when combined accounted for 21% of hate crimes. It should be noted that increases or decreases in the number of crimes may be attributed to changes in reporting; detection; or confidence in the police. Declining numbers of households have been reporting to the NIHE as homeless due to intimidation. Paramilitary intimidation exceeds all other causes over fivefold.
- In 2020 there was a significant number of adults who were annoyed or intimidated by murals, kerb-painting, or flags in the past year. Since 2019 there has been a significant increase in the proportion of adults who felt annoyed by loyalist murals (20 percentage points, from 30% in 2019 to 50% in 2020) and there was also a significant increase in the proportion of adults who felt annoyed by republican murals (18 percentage points, from 25% in 2019 to 43% in 2020). There have been similar increases when considering those intimidated by murals: 20 percentage points, from 14% in 2019 to 34% in 2020 for those intimidated by loyalist murals; and 18 percentage points, from 10% in 2019 to 28% in 2020 for those intimidated by republican murals.
- 54% of those questioned said that they saw town centres as safe and welcoming places for people from all walks of life, which was a significant reduction of 9% since 2019 (63%) and 4% since 2018.
- 85% (in 2019, 91%) of respondents said that they would feel 'very', or 'quite' safe attending events held in a Protestant secondary school and 81% (89% in 2019) to events held in a Catholic secondary school.

¹⁸ NI School Census.

- 64% of respondents said that they would feel safe attending events held in a GAA club and 60% to events held in an Orange Hall. This compares to 70% and 66% respectively in 2019.
- Feelings of safety have significantly decreased since 2013 by six percentage points in GAA Clubs (70% in 2013; 64% in 2020), by four percentage points in Protestant secondary schools (89% in 2013; 85% in 2020) and by 6 percentage points in Catholic Schools (87% in 2013; 81% in 2020). However, there were no significant changes in feelings of safety in Orange Halls.

Our Cultural Expression

- In 2020 83% of adult respondents feel a sense of belonging to their neighbourhood; and the same proportion feel a sense of belonging to Northern Ireland. A significantly lower proportion of young people in 2019 say the same (72% belonging to their neighbourhood; 69% to Northern Ireland).
- The importance of feeling like they have an influence on decision making is linked to how they feel they belong to their community. In 2020 there were just 24% of adults who feel they have an influence on decisions in their neighbourhood. In 2019 there was a 6% increase to 25%. In terms of decisions made in Northern Ireland decisions, only 18% feel they have an influence. Young people (2019) feel they have even less influence on the decisions made in their neighbourhood (9%) and in Northern Ireland (7%),
- In terms of whether culture and traditions enrich Northern Ireland society, there was a significant decrease in 2020 compared to 2019. Sixty-seven percent of adults think that the culture and traditions of Catholic communities add to the richness and diversity of Northern Ireland society; and 65% think this about Protestant communities. Sixty-six per cent think this about Minority Ethnic communities in 2020, compared to 61% in 2019.
- In 2019 76% of respondents thought that the culture and traditions of Protestant communities added to the richness and diversity of Northern Ireland society; 73% thought this about Catholic communities.
- Half of adult respondents (50%) feel that their own cultural identity is respected by society. Fifty-seven percent of Catholic respondents feel this, while a significantly lower proportion of Protestant respondents feel the same way (49%). A significantly lower proportion of those with no religion than either Catholics or Protestants think that their own cultural identity is respected by society (44%).
- Since 2019, there has been a significant decrease in the proportion of those who feel their own cultural identity is respected by society (62% in 2019; 50% in 2020).

The report includes a timeline for the indicator 1.1a, the percentage who think that relations between Protestants and Catholics are better now than they were five years ago. This indicates the percentages rise in tandem with community tensions. Since 1990 there has been marked increases and decreases in the number of adults who think that relationships are better than they were in the previous five years.

From the high points of the 1994 ceasefire, 1998 Good Friday agreement in 2007 settled devolution, the number of adults who believe that relationships are better has fallen with the 2012 flag protests, the percentage rose again with the 2015 Fresh Start Agreement, fell with the 2017 Assembly suspension, and have continued to fall since then.

Key Points For Audit And Strategy Development

The indicator that reports on how relations between Protestants and Catholics are perceived indicates that the percentages rise in tandem with community tensions. Overall, the Good Relations Indicators (2020) report indicates that the Good Relations audit, Strategy and Plan could usefully consider the issues reported in terms of :

Children and Young People

- Young people feel less favourable towards people of another group than adults and that they have less influence on decision making.
- Schools remain places where young people can be open about their cultural identity. There continue to be significant outcomes in terms of numbers of young people who have 'done projects' with pupils from other schools, 'done projects' or 'shared sports facilities or equipment' with pupils from other schools where the pupils were from a different religious background. Young people 'very often' or 'sometimes' socialise or play sport with people from a different religious community. Consequently, these are opportunities for good relations interventions.

Shared Community

- Libraries, shopping centres, leisure centres and parks in their area were perceived to be 'shared and open' to both Catholics and Protestants and consequently represent significant opportunities for good relations interventions. This also draws attention to the sporting, cultural and community venues that could become more open.
- Shared space remains a goal as evidenced by the increased recognition by Catholics and Protestants (and more so by those of no religion) that shops, facilities, and services are not wholly shared.

Safe Community

- The trend while stable is that adults and young people feel less safe in town centres and in attending events in schools, cultural and sporting centres. Good relations interventions could support communities to increase their welcome.
- Flags, kerb-painting and murals loyalist and republican remain sensitive and in 2020 there was a significant increase in the region of 18-20 percentage points in the number of adults who were annoyed or intimidated by murals, kerb-painting, or flags.
- Numbers of reported racially motivated and sectarian hate crime follow a reducing trend, however, they have risen in 2020/21. Homophobic hate crime continues to rise year on year.

Cultural Expression

- The sense of belonging to neighbourhood while decreasing remains high at over 70-85%. For people to feel they belong to their community, the report links this to the importance of feeling that they have an influence in decision-making in their neighbourhood. Therefore, it is significant that the percentages who feel they are influence are remarkably low. Only 24% and adults and 9% of young people felt had had such influence on decisions made in the neighbourhood, or Northern Ireland.
- Cultural expressions continue to annoy adults, who also think that their own cultural identity is not respected.
- The percentage who feel that their cultural identity is respected is 50% - down twelve percentage points from 2019.

- Those who think In terms of whether culture and traditions of Catholic and Protestant communities add to the richness and diversity of Northern Ireland society, there was a significant decrease in 2020 compared to 2019 of 6-11 percentage points.
- Sixty-six per cent think this about Minority Ethnic communities in 2020, compared to 61% in2019.

FLAGS, IDENTITY, CULTURE AND TRADITION REPORT

This report, published in December 2021, contains the findings and recommendations of the Commission on Flags, Identity, Culture and Tradition.¹⁹

Within the report it is noted by the Commission that Section 75(2) of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 contains no definition of the term 'good relations'. However, Section 149 of the Equality Act 2010, which does not extend to Northern Ireland, imposes a duty that commits public bodies to:

- a) Tackle prejudice.
- b) Promote understanding, and
- c) Fostering good relations between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it.

Section 149(5) states:

“Having due regard to the need to foster good relations between persons who share a relevant protected characteristic and persons who do not share it involves have due regard, in particular, to the need to –

- a) Tackle prejudice, and*
- b) Promote understanding”*

The protected characteristics referred to in the Equality Act 2010 are age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, and sexual orientation.

It is also noted that equality and good relations are interdependent of each other, and both are essential in building a shared, peaceful, and equal society.

Within this section of the report, the following recommendations are made:

- The NI Human Rights commission, Equality Commission and other appropriate agencies and NGOs continue to work on the development of a culture of rights within our society. Awareness of rights related issues should also be encouraged through the education system.
- The Human Rights Commission and the Equality Commission bring forward recommendations to the Executive for publicly funded measures to assist the development of capacity within groups who have not previously availed of a rights-based framework.
- The legal duty of good relations should be clearly defined in law.
- The delivery of good relations interventions has reductions of sectarian and race hate incidents as key outcomes.

It is noted that the following challenges remain:

- The Commission discussed how to measure Equity, Diversity, and Interdependence (EDI) within our society. However, the model of assessing EDI through respect, recognition, representation, and resources was not one that the Commission could read consensus on.
- Two proposals related to reflection on policy outcomes in terms of the cultural identity of all minorities and the auditing of public authorities for good relations were also discussed but could not be agreed upon.

¹⁹ The Executive Office. (2021). Commission on Flags, Identity Culture and Tradition: Final Report. Retrieved from <https://www.executiveoffice-ni.gov.uk/sites/default/files/publications/execoffice/commission-on-fict-final-report.pdf>

The Commission also commented on the approach to cultural rights taken in the New Decade, New Approach. The document contains details of a new Office of Identity and Cultural Expression as the central point for giving effect to new legislation. The Office would be responsible for ensuring that society and all public bodies uphold the need to respect the freedom of all people in Northern Ireland to choose their own national and cultural identity, and also for the need to promote reconciliation, tolerance, and meaningful dialogue amongst those from different national and cultural identities.

In addition, the following points are of particular relevance to good relations work at Local Council Level:

- In looking at the importance of leadership for a shared society. The commission considered the challenges of reducing the fear, distrust and disrespect often associated with public expressions of cultural identity and of developing a culture of lawfulness and the role of public leaders, civic leaders and also the role of public agencies.
- In terms of shared space, it was noted that in improving social cohesion and good relations the objective of public authorities is to create a space that fosters engagement, interaction, and relationships. The interface between shared space and good relations is therefore about the right to access areas, and the opportunity to experience the space together with other members of our diverse society.
- The Commission acknowledged that there is evidence of the positive impact that band culture, drama, performance arts, festivals and public art institutions have in promoting good relations with and between communities. The impact can be both social and economic.
- The flying of flags by local government is left to the discretion of each local authority. Developing or reviewing a policy on the flying of the Union Flag requires councils to consider their policy aims, objectives, rationale. Such policies must not cause unlawful discrimination or harassment, unintentionally or indirectly through the effects or impacts of the policy. While the policy aims and objective must be legitimate, the policy is a matter for each Council to decide for itself. In reaching an outcome on any review of the policy, a Council must comply with its Section 75 duties, namely, to “have due regard to the need to promote equality of opportunity and have regard to the desirability of promoting good relations”.

Key Points For Audit And Strategy Development

- The delivery of good relations interventions has reductions of sectarian and race hate incidents as key outcomes
- The report points to the importance of civic leadership for a shared society in meeting the challenges of reducing the fear, distrust and disrespect often associated with public expressions of cultural identity and of developing a culture of lawfulness.
- Through improving Shared space and social cohesion the objective is to create a space that fosters engagement, interaction, and relationships.
- Shared space and good relations is about both the right to access areas and to experience the space together with other members of our diverse society.
- There is evidence of the positive impact that band culture, drama, performance arts, festivals and public art institutions have in promoting good relations with and between communities.
- While flag protocols are left to each local council the flying of union flags is subject to section 75.

RACIAL EQUALITY STRATEGY 2015-25

The Racial Equality Strategy 2015-2025²⁰ establishes a framework for action by government departments and others:

- To tackle racial inequalities and to open up opportunities for all.
- To eradicate racism and hate crime; and
- Along with Together: Building a United Community policy, to promote good race relations and social cohesion.

Within the Strategy, it is emphasised that the policy approach taken is intended to be one of 'interculturalism' rather than 'multiculturalism', where 'we have pride in our particular identity or identities, but also where people have intercultural education which gives them the competence and confidence to relate to people who are different to themselves and see others as an opportunity to learn and develop, rather than a threat'.

An important element of this vision must be for open communities in which people live within shared spaces, which "... does not mean creating environments where groups lose their culture or heritage but rather seeking to avoid segregated environments and promoting good relations".

It is noted that the Race Relations (Northern Ireland) Order 1997, as amended, places a statutory duty on district councils to make appropriate arrangements with a view to ensuring that their various functions are conducted with due regard to the need to:

- a) Eliminate unlawful racial discrimination; and
- b) Promote equality of opportunity, and good relations, between persons of different racial groups.

In 2009, the Order was amended to extend the definition of indirect discrimination to include those who would be put at a disadvantage by a discriminatory provision or practice. Despite a further amendment in 2012 in respect of seafarers, occasion was not found to rectify the anomaly that the 2003 Regulations did not extend to cover colour and nationality, which were covered by the original Order. Since the Equality Act 2010 was introduced in England, Scotland and Wales, a significant gap has developed between protections offered in Great Britain and those available in Northern Ireland, which the UN Committee on the Elimination of all forms of Racial Discrimination has highlighted

The Strategy identified four main manifestations of racism:

1. Racist harassment (including assaults, racist graffiti, threatening behaviour and incitement).
2. Discrimination.
3. Stereotyping; and
4. Institutional (or systemic) racism.

Shared Aims

- Elimination of Racial Inequality: To eliminate racial inequality and promote equality of opportunity in all aspects of economic, social, cultural, political, and public life, for people of different ethnic backgrounds.
- Combatting Racism and Hate Crime: To combat racism and race hate and to provide effective protection against all manifestations of racism and racist crime. To provide redress and to have a victim-centred approach.
- Equality of Service Provision: To ensure that people from a minority ethnic background access and benefit equally from all public services.
- Participation: To increase the participation, representation, and sense of “belonging” of people from minority ethnic backgrounds in all aspects of public, political, economic, social, and cultural life.
- Social Cohesion: To strengthen social relations and interaction between people of different faiths and cultural backgrounds, both long standing within Northern Ireland and recent arrivals to these shores.
- Cultural Identity: To safeguard people’s rights to maintain their cultural identity and to pass it on to subsequent generations.

According to the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA) on Census Day 2021, 3.4% of the population (65,600) belonged to a minority ethnic group, which is double the 2011 figure (1.8%, 32,400) and four times the 2001 figure (0.8%, 14,300). The least diverse Local Government District in 2021 was the Causeway Coast and Glens (1.4%). It is, however, more diverse than the most diverse Local Government District in 2001 (Belfast, 1.3%).²¹ A robust legislative and policy response is therefore vital to ensuring the building of good relations, safe spaces, and equality of opportunity for all.

Key Points For Audit And Strategy Development

- Based on ‘interculturalism’ the emphasis of good relations interventions would support:
 - pride in our particular identity or identities, and that
 - people have intercultural education which gives them the competence and confidence to relate to people who are different to themselves and see others as an opportunity to gain experience and develop, rather than a threat.

Target good relations actions that would contribute to the RES’s shared aims in terms of:

- Promote equality of opportunity in the social and cultural life.
- Combatting Racism and Hate Crime locally with partners.
- Promote through shared spaces and signposting access to services.
- Increase the participation, representation, and sense of “belonging” of people from minority ethnic backgrounds in all aspects of public, social, and cultural life.
- Strengthen social cohesion.
- Safeguard right to maintain their cultural identity and pass this to subsequent generation as part of cultural expression.

A LOCAL PERSPECTIVE: CAUSEWAY COAST AND GLENS

A Challenging Operational Climate

The exit of the UK from the European Union (EU) is the most significant change to the complex political, social, and economic landscape of Northern Ireland since the Good Friday Agreement came into place. Brexit, which was supported by some politicians but rejected by a majority of Northern Irish voters, has reignited tensions and fuelled debate on the future of Northern Ireland. In April 2021, tensions over the fallout from Brexit spilled over into week-long protests amid anger from unionists concerned they are being isolated from the United Kingdom and potentially pushed into a union with the Republic of Ireland due to post-Brexit trade rules.

The NI Protocol allows access to the British market for Northern Irish exporters. However, the controls operating between Great Britain and Northern Ireland are impacting both consumers and businesses. There are challenging, constitutional and political issues to negotiate and unionist tensions are heightened by demographic and societal change as the latest NI Census results highlight that unionists no longer constitute a majority in Northern Ireland.

The recent Northern Ireland Assembly election which has not led to the formation of an Executive or a fully functioning Assembly. The absence of power-sharing institutions means that pressing public policy issues are not being given the focus they require at a time when the cost-of-living crisis is acute.

The COVID-19 pandemic has impacted greatly on day-to-day life affecting employment, work-life balance, friend and family interactions and health service delivery. It is predicted these changes, along with the threat of infection and effects of the virus itself, will have a major impact on population mental health. Increased isolation, unemployment and financial concerns are known to be associated with an increased risk of poor mental health. The Department for Communities acknowledged the important contributions made by, among other, local council and the community and voluntary sectors.²²

According to research by University of York,²³ 76.3% of families in NI will be battling to make ends meet by January 2023. Local households are dealing with spiralling living costs. Energy bills have increased by hundreds of pounds per year, record levels of inflation are making essentials like food and fuel unaffordable and wages nor social security support have risen sufficiently to cushion the blow. The research predicts a fuel poverty rate of over 70% by January 2023. This means over 1.4 million people will be struggling to afford their energy bills.

As the cost-of-living crisis continues, food banks in Northern Ireland are under increasing demand. Over 61,500 food parcels were given out from April 2021 to March 2022 by the Trussell Trust - almost 170 parcels each day on average and represents a 36% increase compared to the same period in 2019/2020.

Of concern, a survey carried out by the Northern Ireland Council for Voluntary Action (NICVA) has revealed that voluntary and community organisations across Northern Ireland have faced a detrimental impact upon their ability to provide their core services due to the ongoing Covid-19 crisis.²⁴ Nearly three quarters (73%) of organisations stated that services or activities had been stopped due to Covid-19, with over a quarter (25.3%) only able to deliver between 1-25% of their normal services or activities.

Higher unemployment, poorer health, lower incomes, reduced educational attainment and poor living environments deepen instability and exacerbate division. The UK Peace Index (2013)²⁵ demonstrates a correlation between deprivation and peace: 'By tackling deprivation it is possible to have large impacts on peace'.

Demographics of The 2021 Census

According to the 2021 Census,²⁶ the population of the Causeway Coast and Glens Local Government District is 141,746, of which 71,898 (51%) are female and 69,848 (49%) are male. It is made up of 57,576 households of which the average size is 2.43 residents.

Age

The median age of females in the area is 43 years, whilst the median age of males is 41 years. The table below details a full breakdown of the Causeway Coast and Glens population by age band. (Table 1) The most recent figures indicate that the area has an older population, with 19% aged 65+ years compared to the NI average of 17%.

Almost eighty-eight nine percent of residents in the borough were born in Northern Ireland, 38.5% identify as British only, and 21.5% as Irish only. Identities stretching across the two islands with the varying emphasis accounted for a further 6.9% of resident. (Tables 2-3)

LOCAL PLANNING FRAMEWORK

This section reviews the attitudes to good relations in the Borough. This concludes with a summary of the key points for audit and strategy development. The numbers of crimes and incidents relevant to community safety and the presence or absence of violence is detailed and key points are summarised. The principal strategies and initiatives relevant to the production of a Good Relations Audit and Strategy that will guide good relations work in Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council. principal strategies, are reviewed and the key points for audit and strategy development detailed include the Equality Action Plan, the Community Plan, the Community Development Strategy and the existing Good Relations Audit and Strategy. The relevance of PEACE PLUS is considered in the next section.

Attitudes to Good Relations Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council Area

Since 1998, Northern Ireland Life and Times survey (NILT) has recorded the attitudes, values, and beliefs of local adults to a wide range of social policy issues. The following data is compiled from the NILT 2019-21 dataset which is broken down at District Council level to compare attitudes in the Borough against the NI average.³⁰

Respondents from Causeway Coast and Glens were more likely to say that relationships between Protestants and Catholics had improved over the last 5 years (43%), compared to the NI average (38%). They were also more likely to think relations between Protestants and Catholics will be better in 5 years' time than now (40%) compared to the NI average (32%).

³⁰ Causeway Coast and Glens Socio Economic Profile: A Thriving Community, 2022.

Respondents from the Borough were less likely to think that divisions between Protestants and Catholics were reflected in their use of different shops and services were used (A little/lot 40%) compared to the rest of NI (A little/lot 48%).

Respondents living in the Borough were more likely to believe that facilities were shared by both Protestants and Catholics compared to the NI average. A lower proportion felt that parks were shared, however the percentage remained high at 94% compared to 90% in NI.

Figure 4 Proportion Agree Facilities are Shared by Catholics and Protestants

Fifty-nine percent of respondents from Causeway Coast and Glens believed that towns and city centres in NI are safe and welcoming, compared to the NI average of 53%.

Figure 5 Proportion Agree/Strongly Agree Towns and City Centres are Safe and Welcoming

Respondents from the Borough are more supportive of mixed religion workplaces (89%), than mixed religion neighbourhood (81%) or schools (64%). The preference for mixed schooling was lower than the NI average of 66%.

Aligned to the rest of NI, Causeway Coast and Glens respondents stated they were comparatively less favourable towards people from another ethnic group (64%) in comparison to Protestants (77%) and Catholics (79%).

Similarly, Causeway Coast and Glens respondents were less likely to believe the culture and traditions from minority ethnic communities (59%) added to the richness of NI society, in comparison to the NI average of 64%.

Causeway Coast and Glens respondents were more likely to feel that their cultural identity is respected by society (58%) compared to the NI average of 53%.

Respondents in the Borough and in NI as a whole, are more likely to feel annoyed, rather than intimidated by Loyalist and Republican murals, kerb painting and flags.

Eighty-three percent of respondents from the Borough stated they felt a sense of belonging to their neighbourhood, slightly lower than the respective NI average. Sense of belonging to NI was slightly higher than the NI average (83% and 82% respectively).

Key Points For Audit And Strategy Development

The figures are compiled from NILT 2019-21 dataset.

- Residents reported improved relations between Catholics and Protestants compared to the Northern Ireland average (43% to 38%). They anticipated these relations will get better in the next five years (40% compared to 32%)
- Forty per cent of residents compared to 48% throughout Northern Ireland believe that divisions influence access to facilities and shops. Ninety- four per cent compared to 90% in Northern Ireland, believe that the following facilities are shared- shopping centres, libraries, parks and leisure centres.
- Towns and city centres are open and welcoming – 59% of residents compared to a Northern Ireland average of 53% believe this.
- Eighty-two percent, which is five percentage points higher, of residents expressed preference for mixed religion workplaces and 89% for mixed religion neighbourhoods. However, Borough residents were below the Northern Ireland average in preferring mixed schooling.
- Borough residents indicated that they were less favourable towards people of ethnic minority background (64%) compared to Protestants or Catholics (77% and 79% respectively).
- Moreover, there were six percentage points difference between Borough residents and the Northern Ireland average, when asked whether the culture of ethnic minorities would add to the richness of Northern Ireland (59% compared to 64%).
- A higher average of Borough residents (58%) compared to the Northern Ireland average (53%) felt that their cultural identity is respected.
- Residents reported increasingly being intimidated or annoyed by Republican and Loyalist murals, care painting or flags.
- A slightly higher sense of belonging to Northern Ireland than to the neighbourhood was recorded.
- However, although higher than the NI average, only 22% of respondents living in Causeway Coast and Glens felt they had influence over local decision-making and 21% felt they had influence over decisions made in NI.

POLICING AND COMMUNITY SAFETY ISSUES

This section provides an overview of issues relevant to good relations and the development of a peaceful society in the Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council area. It commences with an overview of the Policing and Community Safety Partnership Strategic Plan (2019-24).

Statistics and trends in relation to hate crime and incidents - primarily but not exclusively race and sectarian. It then continues with security related statistics – bombing, shooting and paramilitary style shootings and assaults, are then presented. It concludes with a summary of the key points for audit and strategy development.

POLICING AND COMMUNITY SAFETY PARTNERSHIP STRATEGIC PLAN (2019-24)

Links to Department of Justice Community Safety Framework, Draft Organised Crime Strategy for Northern Ireland 2020-23, Adult Restorative Justice Strategy for Northern Ireland.

The following gaps and areas to enhance the interventions through PEACEPLUS are identified. The PCSP strategy places emphasis on prevention and early-stage intervention. PEACEPLUS could assist to extend and create innovative education and diversionary programmes with health and wellbeing, sports, arts, economic, delivery partners. PCSP works in partnership with primary schools in the Borough, to deliver drama-based interventions, but not within secondary schools.

Moreover, there are opportunities through PEACEPLUS to support the Statutory Cohesion Group by working closely with key individuals and groups to develop local solutions to community safety issues (e.g., environmental damage, contentious issues, early intervention, and diversionary activity). The aim is to empower communities to develop solutions that will help to tackle crime, fear of crime and anti-social behaviour.

Key Points For Audit And Strategy Development

PCSP's emphasis on prevention and early intervention could support working with young people through locally identified solutions to community safety issues. It could promote innovative education and diversionary wide-ranging programmes and partners. This could complement the Good Relations action plan and address issues raised in community and targeted consultations.

Hate Motivated Crime

This section commences with a review of definitions. It continues with an examination of the reported hate motivated incidents and crime of a racist, homophobic, and sectarian nature.

Definitions of Hate Motivated Crime

Two distinct definitions are applied in cases involving hate crime, as recorded by the PSNI and PPS:

PSNI: Cases involving hate crime

There is no statutory definition of 'hate crime'. So, in recording hate crimes, the PSNI have adopted the definition for racially motivated crime recommended by the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry, namely: 'Any crime, which is perceived to be racist by the victim or any other person'. The PSNI apply the principles of this definition to record all types of hate crime, including those relating to:

- Racist incidents.
- Homophobic incidents.
- Sectarian incidents.
- Faith/religion incidents (non-sectarian).
- Disability incidents; and
- Transphobic incidents.

PPS: Cases considered by a prosecutor to have involved hate crime which was 'aggravated by hostility'

Whilst there is no statutory definition of hate crime, the law does provide for a 'statutory aggravating feature.' This is applied if, in the view of a prosecutor, this aspect of a case can be proved to the evidential standard; that is, beyond reasonable doubt. If a Judge accepts that this aspect of the case is proven beyond reasonable doubt, he or she must increase the sentence imposed. The four statutory categories of aggravated offences are:

- Race.
- Religion.
- Sexual Orientation; and
- Disability.

There is no statutory category of 'sectarian' or 'transphobic' to corresponded with the PSNI definition. Where applicable, offences motivated by sectarianism may be considered to be aggravated on the basis of race or religion. However, some offences which are broadly considered to be sectarian may not fall within either statutory category of race or religion, so the legislation relating to the aggravated element will not apply.³¹

Reported Hate Motivated Crime

During 2021/22 there were 35 racially motivated incidents and 19 crimes reported to the police in the Borough (3% and 2% of the respective NI totals). Causeway Coast and Glens had the lowest number of reported incidents and crimes and was one of only two police districts to report year on year decreases (20 incidents; 17 crimes).

During the period there were 18 homophobic motivated incidents and 10 crimes reported to the police in the Borough (4% and 3% of the respective NI totals). Causeway Coast and Glens had the lowest number of reported incidents and ranked 9th in terms of crimes. There was an increase in reported homophobic incidents (n3), although homophobic crimes decreased.

Security Related Crimes and Incidents

During 1 October 2021 to 30 September 2022 there was one security related death in NI (equivalent to the previous 12 months) and comparatively fewer bombings, shootings, and paramilitary style attacks. There were four bombing incidents, compared to seven in the previous 12 months and 25 shooting incidents, compared to 34. Causeway Coast and Glens police district saw the greatest decrease in the number of such attacks compared to the previous 12 months (from 8 to 3). In terms of bombing incidents Causeway Coast and Glens saw the greatest decrease in the number of bombing incidents compared to the previous 12 months (from five to one).³⁴ There were two paramilitary style shooting casualties and one assault casualty in Causeway Coast and Glens in the 12 months to September 2022. All 29 casualties of paramilitary style assaults in NI during the 12-month period were aged 18 years and above.³⁵

In NI there were 119 security related arrests under Section 41 of the Terrorism Act 2000 (TACT), the same number as during the previous 12 months. Fourteen persons were subsequently charged, compared to 17 during the previous 12 months. Causeway Coast and Glens ranked 3rd highest with 16 TACT arrests in the 12 months to September 2022 and 2nd in terms of persons charged subsequent to TACT arrests (n3). Causeway Coast and Glens police district had a 5% arrest rate for Persons Stopped and Searched (n838; 4% of NI total) and Subsequently Arrested (n44; 3.5% of NI total) Under all Legislative Powers.

Key Points For Audit And Strategy Development

- During 2021/22 Causeway Coast and Glens had the lowest number of reported racially motivated incidents and crimes. It was one of only two police districts to report year on year decreases (20 incidents; 17 crimes). They continue to be very significant given the very small numbers of people from ethnic minority backgrounds living in the borough.
- Over a ten-year period 2011-2021 the occurrence of both reported race and sectarian hate crimes and incidents has an overall downward trend.
- The reported 83 sectarian incidents and 68 crimes in the Borough was an increase over the year (n29 incidents; n31 crimes). Thirty-five racially motivated incidents and 19 crimes were reported.
- There was an increase in reported homophobic incidents (n3), although homophobic crimes decreased.
- The numbers reported for disability, faith/religion and transphobic motivated incidents and crimes are comparatively lower. Three disability is the highest. While Security Related Crimes and Incidents remain at a low level there is no room for complacency.

EQUALITY ACTION PLAN 2019 – 2023

This strategy document addresses the need for Council to create a new corporate approach to equality and diversity issues with the following priorities identified:

- Design, commission and deliver services that are accessible, inclusive, and responsive to our customer’s needs.
- Raise awareness of equalities issues and tackle prejudices, both internally and externally.
- Attract, recruit, retain and progress a diverse range of employees in a culture which celebrated diversity and inclusion; and
- Provide a working environment where employees are treated with fairness, dignity, and respect.

Within the plan the following issues, outcomes and actions are detailed which include or are relevant to those groups falling under the Good Relations Duty in Section 75(2) of the Northern Ireland Act 1998. These aspects of the Equality Action Plan not only identify some issues which are also of concern in a good relations context but offer an opportunity for partnership and collaboration in achieving shared goals. (Table 14)

Key Points For Audit And Strategy Development

- Corporate commitment to developing good relations and equality targets to deliver services that are accessible, inclusive, and responsive to the council's customer's needs.
- Commitment made to improve co-ordination of monitoring processes.
- Commitment to processes of engagement of S.75 groups across the council area.

COMMUNITY PLAN 2017 – 2030: A BETTER FUTURE TOGETHER

Following community engagement, the Community Plan is focused on the following three key strategic themes:

1. A Sustainable Accessible Environment
2. A Thriving Economy
3. A Healthy Safe Community

Whilst Good Relation is not mentioned or referred to within the Plan, a number of outcomes and actions identified are of relevance to good relations work in the Council area, particularly with regard to the third issue of 'A Healthy Safe Community' which 'will contribute to a benefit from a healthy, connected and safe community that nurtures resilience, promotes respect and supports everyone to live well together'.³⁶

Under this theme, the following five outcomes are listed:

1. All people of the Causeway Coast and Glens benefit from improved physical health and mental wellbeing.
2. Our children and young people will have the very best start in life
3. All people of the Causeway Coast and Glens can live independently as far as possible and access support services
4. The Causeway Coast and Glens area feels safe
5. The Causeway Coast and Glens area promotes and supports positives relationships

Outcomes 4 and 5 are of most relevance to Good Relations and offer opportunities for collaboration.

Outcome 4 means that:

- People in the Causeway Coast and Glens experience a reduction in levels of crime.
- The people of the Causeway Coast and Glens benefit from a reduction in fear of crime; and
- The people of the Causeway Coast and Glens will experience improved safety in the home, in the community and in public spaces.

Outcome 5 means that:

- There will be increased collaborative working across the Causeway Coast and Glens area,
- There will be increased promotion and sharing of community space across the Causeway Coast and Glens; and
- The Causeway Coast and Glens area will benefit from sustainable community and voluntary activities, leading to an increased sense of community belonging.

Key Points For Audit And Strategy Development

- Commitment made across the council that the people of the borough will benefit from a reduction in crime, fear of crime and improved levels of safety and increased collaborative working.
- Sharing of community space throughout the borough is a desired outcome.
- Sense of belonging will increase springing from sustainable community and voluntary activities.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT STRATEGY 2020-23

The Community Development Strategy provides a framework for Council's continued investment "in strengthening local communities, increasing community participation and promoting social inclusion".³⁷ Community development involves a long-term process beginning with people's own experiences and enabling communities to work together to:

- Identify their own needs and actions.
- Take collective action using their strengths and resources.
- Develop their confidence, skills, and knowledge.
- Challenge unequal power relationships.
- Promote social justice, equality, and inclusion.

Three outcomes for the Community Development Strategy are listed as follows:

1. Our community will be skilled and confident.
2. Our community will be connected.
3. Our community will be fair and inclusive.

It is noted in the Strategy that good relations is identified as one of the top ten issues that community groups are addressing according to a 2019 survey. Moreover, under Outcome 3 of the Strategy, tackling poverty, deprivation and social exclusion is identified as a key area of work, in addition to supporting community groups to carry out local engagement exercises to determine concerns and priorities and to encourage more active citizenship.

There is therefore much opportunity for partnering and collaboration tackling mutual concerns and achieve shared goals. The opportunity for partnership is identified in the Strategy, for example, under Outcome 1 in relation to a celebration of good practice in the community and voluntary sector and again under Outcome 3 in relation to local community engagement and participation exercises.

Key Points For Audit And Strategy Development

- Encourages active citizenship, partnership working and identifying local priorities.
- Commitment to community development approaches.

GOOD RELATIONS AUDIT AND STRATEGY 2018- 2023

Priority projects were identified based on the audit findings. And aligned to the T: BUC priorities as outlined in the table below.

- Youth engagement: Promoting Youth Civic Engagement Programme will aim to build confidence, resilience, citizenship, and raise awareness of the diversity among young people.
- Shared Education: Promoting shared education opportunities - Education Networking Programme aimed at establishing a shared education network across the CCG area encompassing as many primary schools as possible.
- Cultural diversity and Integration: Through the Looking Glass Programme – creating opportunities for people to examine and reflect on the different cultures, traditions and faiths of others who live within the Borough and creating every day opportunities for people to meet and engage with people from other community backgrounds.
- Using CCGs attractive location for all: Sense of Belonging Programme which will use the local assets of the area - building on the British Open in 2019 which will be hosted in the Royal Portrush Golf Club and creating a sense of belonging to the area for all but in particular those who are marginalised.
- Shared Space maximisation: Mainstreaming the GR Declaration in shared spaces – aiming to create more shared spaces in the area.
- Elected Members Leading by Example: Civic Leadership Programme – creating a safe space for elected members to reflect on their role in the creation of a shared society in the CCG area.
- Building on CCGs rich heritage: Heritage in Rathlin and the Glens Good Relations Programme - This programme recognises that there has not been as much council facilitated good relations activity in Rathlin, Glens and Ballycastle area in recent years but, there are a number of communities who undertake good relations activity however much of it is under the radar. There is a need to support this work. The project aims to promote the rich culture and heritage of these areas – rotational programme.
- Asset based approach to addressing Community Tensions: Community Tensions Forum Support Programme - this project will aim to increase the capacity of the existing Community Tensions Forum. Good Relations will continue to facilitate regular proactive dialogue with other Council departments and statutory agencies. The focus will be for members to monitor emerging issues that may cause an increase in community tensions during particular periods throughout the year (for example bonfire safety, flags, parading etc) agencies will, where possible, provide a collaborative response to manage shared priority issues.
- Addressing hate crime: Community Cohesion Programme - develop a programme / initiative to raise awareness of emerging issues particularly in relation to challenging attitudes which contribute to sectarianism, racism, and other forms of hate crime.
- Fair Share approach to building good relations: Building a United Community Fund is designed to promote positive citizenship and civic leadership through a fund that targets all TBUC themes. It includes support with applications and dialogue sessions for groups in receipt of funding on what is working and what is not in local areas, with an opportunity to celebrate success of local projects.
- Celebrating cultural diversity: Positive Promotion of Cultural Celebration Programme will provide support to communities to help promote positive expression of culture. The project will facilitate communication and dialogue in communities to develop positive, respectful, and inclusive perspectives towards cultural celebrations and traditions - “Our stories matter”. It will aim to address cultural identity erosion issues that some groups may feel, focusing on empathy building between communities, involving local institutions.

Table 15 The aims and projects of the Good Relations Plan were linked to the four TBUC Themes & Outcomes

Theme	Outcomes	Aim	Projects
1.0 Our Children and Young People – to continue to improve attitudes amongst our young people and to build a community where they can play a full and active role in building good relations	1.1: Improving attitudes of children from diverse backgrounds	Aim 1: To enable children and young people in the Causeway Coast and Glens area to engage in good relations activities through building their resilience and leadership skills and their trust, understanding and tolerance for people from diverse cultures, traditions, or political backgrounds with a longer-term outcome of improving in their attitudes towards others	Project 1: Promoting youth civic engagement Programme
	1.2: Young people engaging in bringing the community together		Project 2: Education Networking Programme
2.0 Our Shared Community – in moving from contested spaces to shared spaces, we aim to create a community where division does not restrict the life opportunities and where all areas are open and accessible to everyone.	2.1: Increased use of shared space and services (e.g., leisure centres, shopping centres, education, housing)	Aim 2: To create a more equal, shared, and inclusive area for all in the Causeway Coast and Glens area, with a range of shared and welcoming spaces and activities in within which all people are able to engage, where people feel comfortable engaging, where tolerance and understanding of other cultures, traditions and political backgrounds has increased and where myths, misperceptions, fears and barriers to sharing, visible or invisible, are slowly removed	Project 3: Through the Looking Glass
	2.2: Shared space is accessible to all		Project 4: “We are Open” Sense of Belonging Programme
			Project 6: Mainstreaming the GR Declaration in shared spaces
			Project 7: Civic Leadership Programme
			Project 5: Heritage in Rathlin and the Glens Good Relations Programme

Theme	Outcomes	Aim	Projects
3.0 Our Safe Community - to create a community where everyone feels safe in moving around and where life choices are not inhibited by fears around safety.	3.1: Reduce the prevalence of hate crime and intimidation	Aim 3: To increase awareness of the factors that contribute to hatred based on religious belief, political opinion, and racial group and that result in intimidation and anti-social behaviour, and which may cause the area to feel unsafe for some and to create a safe community for all	Project 8: Community Tensions Forum Support Programme
	3.2: A community where spaces and places are safe for all		Project 9: Community cohesion programme
4.0 Our Cultural Expressions – To create a community, which promotes mutual respect and understanding, is strengthened by its diversity and where cultural expression is celebrated and embraced.	4.1: Increase sense of community belonging (widens contribution beyond community background)	Aim 4: To support communities in the Causeway Coast and Glens area to address hard issues, prejudice, and mistrust that they may have towards others of a different community background, to promote awareness, understanding and the respectful celebration of the different cultures that exist in the area and promote the value of diversity and the importance of dispelling myths in recognition of the multi-cultural nature of the area	Project 11: Building a United Community Fund
	4.2: Cultural diversity is celebrated		Project 10: Positive Promotion of Cultural Celebration

Delivery Model

In terms of delivery, the strategy needs to take a locality approach to what it does as well as recognising that some good relations issues cut across the whole area. A thematic approach is required for this. In the coming years, a co-design approach should be taken to the development and delivery of action plans moving forward in partnership with other statutory agencies and in line with the community plan.

Key for Audit and Strategy Plan development.

- Monitoring and evaluation data including from the project was recorded against each of the 2022/23 projects in the 2022-23 4th Quarter Report to TEO. Where projects were successful in addressing current issues, the projects have been refined and included in the 2023/24 action plan,

- The preferred delivery model of the strategy required a locality approach, featured co-design to the development and delivery with statutory partners.

PEACEPLUS PROGRAMME

PEACEPLUS is a European Union funding programme designed to support peace and prosperity across Northern Ireland and the border counties of Ireland, building upon the work of the previous PEACE and INTERREG Programmes. The design reflects the importance of peace-building activity, but also the importance of actions that will contribute positively to the economy, building prosperity and adjusting to the new environment and future challenges.

The overall objective of the PEACEPLUS Programme will be to build Peace and Prosperity and ensure that this Programme will leave a lasting and tangible legacy. The Programme's strategy is to continue to make the most of the opportunities and to address the needs arising from the peace process to boost economic growth and stimulate social and economic regeneration and secondly, to promote social inclusion, particularly for those at the margins of economic and social life. The Programme will help to address many long-standing social and economic challenges which continue to impact on rural and urban communities.

Peace and reconciliation are essential for ongoing socio-economic development and prosperity. Therefore, actions to improve community and social cohesion are a governmental priority. Continued and considered investment in proven pathways to reconciliation is required to build peaceful and thriving communities. Such investments should result in a legacy of change, achieved through physical and social improvements, which facilitate increased social inclusion and improved cross-community and cross-border relations.

PEACEPLUS is a major relevant initiative considered in developing the Good Relations Audit and Strategy 2023–26, the identification of synergies between PEACEPLUS and selected local plans relevant to good relations is critical. This is necessary in order to complement and to provide additionality to PEACEPLUS and related strategies. It is in this context that the PEACEPLUS priorities: Local Community Regeneration and Transformation; and the aims related Thriving and Peaceful Communities; and Building Respect for All Cultures and the synergies with a range of local strategies that have been selected from the PEACEPLUS Socio Economic Profile: A Thriving Community.

Within the strategies the specific identified gaps and PEACEPLUS additionality outlined within the Socio-Economic Profile) represent opportunities that could address both the findings of the Audit and contribute to the development of a complementary Good Relations Strategy that is sustainable in the longer term.

The opportunities relevant to Local Community Regeneration and Transformation are to be found in The Interim Local Rural Development Strategy, Recovery and Renewal - Economic Strategy for Causeway Coast and Glens, Tourism And Destination Management Strategy. Those relevant to Thriving and Peaceful Communities, are the Community Development Strategy and the Anti-Poverty Action Plan. The Good Relations Strategy, Culture, Arts and Heritage Strategy and The Causeway Coast and Glens Youth Service Area Plan are relevant to Building Respect for All Cultural Identities.

The peacebuilding needs identified through the Peace IV learning legacy will inform both the development of PEACE PLUS and the Good Relations Audit and Strategy. Those relevant are summarised below.

- Few opportunities for young people to engage on a cross-community basis, particularly in rural areas.
- Negative familial and peer group attitudes and perceptions of different cultures.
- Anti-social behaviour, drugs and alcohol abuse and mental health issues.
- Existence of murals, flags, graffiti, emblems, and memorials, including those along tourist routes and in residential areas.
- Weak leadership capacity of the statutory sector and community staff to work on cross-community basis.
- Prejudices and hidden sectarianism and racism.
- Rural isolation and poor links between isolated villages.
- Language and capacity barriers that exist in the Black Minority Ethnic (BME) community around accessing services.
- Existence of paramilitary influence and control.

- Need to develop stronger protocols for cultural celebrations and events.
- Continued fear and unwillingness around different cultural backgrounds working together and cross-border initiatives.

Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council was allocated £3.4m in Peace IV to deliver a series of programmes targeting youth practitioners, cultural institutions, young leaders, community groups, older people, BME communities, people with disabilities, pre-schools, schools, sports clubs, and churches. Cross-border initiatives involved Donegal and Sligo communities. The following learning has been identified:

- Some groups do not have the capacity to engage.
- Despite overall positive cross-community engagement, there were challenges engaging some groups/organisations.
- It is likely that initial single-identity work will need to continue for some groups, to prepare for more meaningful engagement in PEACEPLUS.
- Cross border work requires more emphasis and careful planning.
- There is an opportunity to build on and extend successful initiatives such as Youth Leadership and Community Integration Programmes.
- Co-designed approach with local community/voluntary sector partnership to enable a better understanding of emerging community issues, quick response to those needs and the refinement of programmes to ensure full delivery of objectives.
- The need to grasp opportunities and be bold with our ideas and delivery - more strategic approach delivering District-scale activities to have a greater impact.
- Important to provide a range of opportunities and engagements that people will relate to, enjoy, have shared interest in but with peace and reconciliation objectives.

Local Community Action Plans

PEACEPLUS Local Community Action Plans will be produced for the Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council area, co-terminus with and complementing the existing community planning structures. It is envisaged that localised plans will be developed for defined geographical areas (via DEAs or clustering) that will collectively extend to all parts of the borough. The Local Community Action Plan will enable diverse partnerships, led by the local authorities, to establish priority actions for their local areas and collectively address these, in a manner which will make a significant and lasting contribution to peace and reconciliation at the local Programme Area level. PEACEPLUS aims:

“To enable and empower local community partnerships, led by the local authorities, to select and deliver priority projects on a cross-community basis, which will result in shared and inclusive local services, facilities and spaces and make a significant and lasting contribution to peace and reconciliation”.

Actions within the localised plans will span the range of social, environmental, and economic interventions included within the PEACEPLUS Programme. However, principally, the plans will be centred around three core themes:

1. Local Community Regeneration and Transformation:

- Transformation and re-imagining of individual or collective areas within a community to include existing buildings, open spaces, streetscapes etc. in a manner which challenges initial perceptions and increases the level of shared pride in an area.
- Development of new or enhanced facilities within existing buildings, which will enable increased levels of cross-community interaction and service provision. The focus of these new or enhanced shared spaces will vary and include areas such as social enterprise, community development, tourism, education, sport, culture etc.
- Development of new shared outdoor spaces which enable increased levels of cross-community interaction and where possible capitalise upon natural assets.

2. Thriving and Peaceful Communities:

- Build the capacity of local organisations through cross-community collaboration.
- Develop new community leaders and enhance the capacity of existing leaders and volunteers to promote and facilitate peace and reconciliation.
- Enable cross-community interaction and collaboration across a broad range of areas of mutual interest to include parenting, arts and culture, sport, and social innovation/enterprise.
- Programmes developed to provide social and emotional support and opportunities for people of all ages.
- Programmes involving social prescribing initiatives.
- Community justice interventions that contribute to peace building and positive relations.

3. Building Respect for all Cultural Identities:

- Build, improve, and sustain relationships between and within communities by addressing issues of trust, prejudice, and intolerance.
- Programmes which result in increased levels of understanding and integration of minority communities, including newcomer families.
- Conflict resolution interventions (including anti-sectarian initiatives), which contribute towards building positive relations.
- Programmes which increase civic participation, including those by minority and newcomer communities (this may include the requirement for language support).
- Programmes which facilitate positive cultural expression within diverse communities, which increase levels of mutual understanding, trust, and respect.
- Programmes which engage those reluctant to engage/ alternative views/ hard to hear/ seldom heard, which if not supported to engage and therefore heard or challenged, will contribute to the status quo for the entire community
- Programmes which increase knowledge and understanding of individual and collective history and heritage.

It will be important that the process to identify priority actions and the interventions subsequently supported, demonstrate significant peace and reconciliation progress.

Projects within the co-designed Local Community Action Plans should result in increased levels of social inclusion and cross-community integration. Actions should incorporate the level of sustained contact between those from different community, cultural and political backgrounds, required to achieve significant attitudinal and behavioural change. Meaningful cross-community contact must be evidenced, and Action Plans must include cross-border working.

Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council has been awarded an indicative allocation of €6,777,244 under Theme 1 Building Peaceful and Thriving Communities, dependent upon submission of a high quality co-designed Local Action Plan. It is envisaged that the Recovery and Renewal - Economic Strategy for Causeway Coast and Glens and the associated 25 Village Plans and Town Centre masterplans that have been developed by communities on a cross-community basis and provide the framework for a variety of local regeneration and transformation initiatives, will support PEACEPLUS desired outcomes. Further initiatives include programmes which enable community groups, small businesses, or individuals to occupy vacant spaces and shopfront revitalisation. There are opportunities to progress regeneration ideas that are not receiving funding from other sources.

PEACEPLUS: LOCAL COMMUNITY REGENERATION AND TRANSFORMATION

The following strategies are outlined as they place emphasis upon the promotion of urban and rural regeneration activities, both in terms of area-based physical improvements and tackling underlying systemic issues by promoting economic growth and addressing inequalities. These strategies and particularly the additionality PEACE PLUS offers have potential to impact positively on a continuing social peace process and the heightened desire evidenced in the community consultation for it to be accompanied and underpinned by social (and economic) transformation.

All strategies link to the Programme for Government at a central level. Additional local area-based strategies/research of note include Shared Space in Causeway Coast and Glens Community Centre Perception Study, Causeway Coast and Glens Heritage Trust Management Plan for Antrim Coast and Glens Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty (AONB), Neighbourhood Renewal Plans, Strategic Framework for Community Centre Provision, Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council Play Investment Strategy and associated DEA audits, the Sports and Leisure Facility Strategy and Causeway Coast and Glens Local Biodiversity Action Plan (LBAP).

The identified gaps and PEACEPLUS additionality relevant to the Good Relations Strategy includes village and town centre regeneration and management including the re-occupation of vacant buildings by all sectors. It will include opportunities progress discussions around disinvestment and socio-economic impacts of divisions.

Tourism and Destination Management Strategy (2015-20)

The identified gaps and PEACEPLUS additionality relevant to the Good Relations Strategy Explore Causeway Coast and Glens promoting cross-community collaboration and appreciation of local heritage by clustering visitor attractions and itineraries, around the area's unique heritage and culture. This will include traditional music, dance, and food and opportunities to improve cohesion through expanding local festivals and events programmes, ensuring activities are welcoming and inclusive and supporting participation from marginalised and socially excluded groups.

PEACEPLUS: THRIVING AND PEACEFUL COMMUNITIES

The strategies reviewed have a specific focus on strengthening community resilience, capacity, and cohesion, through personal and group development, providing platforms for engagement with the most marginalised and socially excluded members of the community and supporting actions that help people and neighbourhoods feel safer.

There is recognition that community development approaches are core to reducing inequalities. Relevant local strategies and initiatives also include Neighbourhood Renewal, Causeway Coast and Glens Volunteering Policy, Causeway Older Active Strategic Team (COAST) inter-agency partnership, Age Friendly Action Plan etc.

Community Development Strategy (2020-23)

Links to The Health and Social Care Board and the Public Health Agency Community Development Strategy (in development), DfC Urban Regeneration Community Development (URCD) Policy Framework Links.

The identified gaps and PEACEPLUS additionality relevant to the Good Relations Strategy include a focus on community development approaches to good relations that focuses on common issues rather than divisions. PEACEPLUS also needs to create localised networking opportunities to enable civic leadership, participation, and engagement - equipping community and voluntary representatives to reach into their communities to connect with those experiencing exclusion and advocate on their behalf. Cross-community models of good practice have been identified through PB processes and these could be developed and extended specifically to promote good relations.

The identified gaps and PEACEPLUS additionality relevant to the Good Relations Strategy are through initiatives that reach into the S75 equality groups. This is in line with the council's commitments under the community plan. This refers to interventions that have the potential to provide additional infrastructure support and facilitate joint programmes to reduce common inequalities in health, education, employment.

PEACEPLUS: BUILDING RESPECT FOR ALL CULTURAL IDENTITIES

The Good Relations Strategy directly aligns to Together Building a United Community Strategy, (T:BUC) and reflects the commitment to improving community relations and achieving change against the interlinked priorities of children and young people, shared community, safe community, and cultural expression. There are many vehicles through which good relations may be delivered. Potential areas of additionality in relation to the Good Relations, Culture, Arts and Heritage and Area Youth Service action plans are highlighted.

Good Relations Strategy

The identified gaps and PEACEPLUS additionality relevant to the Good Relations Strategy include the adoption of an area-based approach which is developed and driven by the community according to evidenced need. DEA focused action plans must target specific areas and groups and address hard issues such as sectarianism, racism, community control, contested space and segregation. Some projects piloted under PEACE IV have continued under the good relations function. In view of the importance of leadership, succession, and positive role modelling is critical. Activities should include elected representatives in order that they understand community needs, challenges and aspirations.

The identified gaps and PEACEPLUS additionality relevant to the Good Relations Strategy provide the opportunity to include the following. The exploration of arts, music, dance, traditional crafts, language, and heritage helps build a greater understanding and appreciation of one another's cultural identity. These programmes also open up discussions on current contentious issues. Outreach approaches and opportunities for collaboration on shared history projects, myth busting etc can be delivered via PEACEPLUS. There is considerable scope to develop links under PEACEPLUS Community Regeneration and Transformation through public art and creative interpretation of the built and natural environment, in addition to supporting events and cultural tourism. Events for residents and visitors within cultural venues

The identified gaps and PEACEPLUS additionality relevant to the Good Relations Strategy were identified. They include:

- Youth focused programmes need to be relevant to young people include risk-taking, physical, and mental health, paramilitary/organised crime, sectarianism and racism, disaffection, and low levels of attainment in school.
- There needs to be more emphasis in building localised cross-community infrastructure which spans different age groups - moving away from geographically distant, short-term projects. There are gaps in sustained cross-community and inter-racial contact. PEACEPLUS activity can provide the momentum to further develop inter-club activity and promotion and improve accessibility by increasing the number of spaces that young people can attend.
- PEACEPLUS provides the opportunity to reconnect young people with neighbourhood activity, provide access to leadership/training opportunities and volunteering. This would assist community groups to become more representative and prepare for succession planning.

Key Points for Audit and Strategy Development

- The three core PEACE PLUS themes can complement the Good Relations Strategy.
- Particular areas include regeneration, young people, integration issues and building the capacity for good relations.
- Similarly, the Peace IV learning legacy should inform the audit practically.

Section Five CONSULTATIONS AND KEY THEMES MAPPED TO T :BUC

Consultation Methodology

The methodology to undertake the audit and strategy was designed to target partners, area-based communities, specific thematic groupings, elected members and the general public. The total number of people who participated in the consultations was 149. The online survey was closed at 157 persons. 306 individuals in total engaged with the Good Relations Audit.

The workshop-based consultations were organised to include four public, area based / geographical consultations, four thematic discussions, leading to three face-to-face interviews with community representatives working within one of the thematic areas because of difficulties in achieving the thematic meetings. Strategic partners were also engaged via two existing strategic partner forums and seven elected members took place in individual interviews.

The consultations were based around the following discussion:

- What is Good Relations? Why is it relevant?
- What works? To reflect and consolidate on good relations work to date. How has it impacted positively on your community?
- What matters? To invite you to share what you think is important in good relations and what you are noticing in your own work and context.
- Challenges and Opportunities? To explore how to overcome the current challenges and harness the good relations opportunities that are presenting themselves at this time.
- Future Focus:
 - ✓ To prioritise, where best for council to focus its energy, expertise, and resources at this moment in time for good relations. Key issues and next steps.

The discussions were wide ranging. They covered issues ranging from feeling safe in the area you live to the cost-of-living crisis. Therefore, the results have been further analysed under T: BUC's four key aims, capacity building and complementarity with the relevant policies, strategies and priorities identified and details in sections 1, 2 3, and 4 of this Good Relations Audit and Strategy. Meetings were held in Coleraine, Ballymoney, Limavady, Dungiven, Cushendun and online. Public participation was challenging. Despite the efforts of community networks and groups, promotion online through Council Facebook pages, and posters displayed locally, engagement was variable.

Specific issues and groups were targeted to achieve an input from young people, specifically disadvantaged hosted by BYTES in Coleraine, and LGBTQ+ youth with the Rainbow Project, loyalist and hard to reach in terms of good relations hosted by Ulidian in Ballymoney, those with specific needs and issues – Asylum seekers and Refugees (hosted by BCRC), and good relations practitioners.

(i)Thematic meetings included: BYTES Coleraine, Asylum Seekers Refugees, LGBTQ+ Rainbow Project and UU Coleraine and Community Relations Practitioners Focus Group.

(ii) Public/Area based/Geographical workshops co-convened and held were as follows: Roe Valley Residents Association and held in Community Hub, Catherine St, Limavady, Glenshane Community Development Group and held in Glenshane Business Centre, Dungiven, Limavady Drop-In Centre. A further meeting with promotion through NACN and the CDDA was held in The Old Church, Cushendun.

(iii) Statutory Partners were involved in interviews and planning sessions. These were generally multi agency and sector and included Causeway Coast and Glens Council officers and elected representatives. They involved engagements with Strategic Partners Planning Session, Policing and Community Safety Partnership Focus Group, and the Bonfire Statutory Cohesion Group. Agencies involved included the Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service, Northern Ireland Housing Executive (NIHE), Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI) and Department for Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (DAERA).

(V) Elected members took part in individual interviews, representing six political parties and an independent councillor.

GOOD RELATIONS AUDIT (SURVEY AND CONSULTATION FINDINGS) AND EMERGING THEMES

Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council undertook a Good Relations Audit to determine the current provision, identify gaps, and determine the needs within the borough. The Junction, Peace and Reconciliation Initiative have been appointed to carry out the audit and develop a new Good Relations Strategy for Council. The survey was completed by 157 people on line.

Good Relations Survey Quantitative Analysis

From 151 people who responded to this question, 98.7% think good relations work is really important (77.7%) or important.

Key findings are as follows:

- The three most common good relations issues identified in the area at this moment are sectarianism (n126, 80.3%), cultural diversity (n97, 61.8%) and racism (n44, 28%).
- Racism is just the same (n66,42%), getting worse (n55, 35%), and getting better (n 38, 24.2%).
- Addressing the legacy of the past is really important (n72, 46.5%), important (n66, 42%), not that important (n16, 10.2%) and not important at all (n4, 2,5%).
- 79.6% of people felt safe in their community, 12.1% did not.

When asked about identity 52.2% responded Yes. 31.2% sometimes and 16.6% of people said their identity was not respected. (Figure 13).

Good Relations Survey Qualitative Analysis

Three qualitative questions were included in the survey. The overall responses were thoughtful, detailed, and the main points are summarised below.

Q6. If good relations work is making a difference, what does/might that difference look like? For example, how would your local streets and neighbour interactions be?

Q6. Evaluative Summary:

In response to this question, the majority of respondents thought good relations work would make a difference on the streets and within local communities by contributing to and strengthening the sense of a Shared Community and would impact on the degree of acceptance of cultural diversity and pluralism. Good relations would also impact on the streets and local communities by creating a Safer Community for all.

Our Children and Young People

A number of respondents have pointed to the need to be more future focused, putting the next generation first and creating more opportunities for young people to come together on a more regular basis.

Shared Community

- Based on the comments received a significant number of respondents expressed opinions around how good relations if working could contribute to 'shared community', through more intentional shared spaces, more extensive/widespread cross community and open community working at local community/neighbourhood levels.
- Many responses pointed to the need for 'ordinary people' to be supported in working together around social issues, everyday ordinary issues at local levels. Many expressed that good relations would lead to greater integration throughout community, including in education and housing.

Cultural Expression

Cultural Expression comes up as a significant impactful issue for good relations. Respondents reflecting the need for greater acceptance and understanding of difference. They both expected and identified the opportunity for greater awareness, understanding and respect for diverse cultures, inclusive of minority cultural identities, and unionist and nationalist communities. Activities and showcasing opportunities such as storytelling, diversity talks, cultural and heritage events could contribute positively to good relations by encouraging greater openness, acceptance, and understanding of diversity, and people from, different cultural backgrounds.

- The issue of overt public cultural expression of identity and culture is also raised as an issue which impinges on an increased sense of 'shared community', in particular where flags/emoles are used in a way which is perceived as 'designating areas' or 'marking territory' (reference to both 'loyalist' flags, painted kerbs, the marching session', GAA flags, Irish name signs).
- The CCGBC Council's policy on Flags on its own buildings and the various party political stances is also perceived by some respondents to inhibit the development of more positive good relations.
- A small number of respondents question whether good relations can make a difference at all; whether the reach was limited and whether good relations efforts are equal across all geographic areas.

Q7. Can you share an example of good relations work that was impactful or that prevented further conflict or division.

When asked about the interventions they would like to see in a Good Relations Strategy, the response was again thoughtful and detailed. The evaluative summary is accompanied by an analysis by T: BUC.

Q.7 Evaluative Summary:

A number of examples of impactful good relations work are cited as taking place through shared education in schools, as well as within the youth sector. Greysteel and Limavady are singled out, including nonaligned cultural events e.g., Stendhal festival.

- A number of examples of impactful work are cited as taking place through community sector organisations.
 - Women's Groups, Men's Sheds, cross community contact schemes, community groups are working together as cross community groups or on a cross community basis, and art/creative lead initiatives.
 - There are suggestions made around the role of Church groups working together to support inclusive community.
 - It was identified that community venues are both potentially and actually important to enabling cross community work.
 - Festivals e.g., Halloween, Lammas are regarded as offering potential to be intentionally inclusive as non-aligned /shared cultural gatherings and events.
 - Peace IV organisations and programmes were also identified as playing a positive role.
- A number of specific initiatives - which have been designed purposefully as positive cultural encounter programmes and or as addressing the perceived negative impacts of 'flag flying' and of 'bonfires' which can be divisive - are also cited, as well as specific mediation and dialogue efforts.
- A number of respondents when challenged to identify impactful examples, or cite examples outside of the CCGBC area e.g., they referred to leadership at the time of the GFA and the better bonfire management now.

Q.10 Evaluative Summary

'What type of activities, projects or interventions would you like to see as part of a council good relations strategy?'

Respondents' answers point towards actions which fall within the four T: BUC aims: inter-relating themes of Children and Young People, Shared Community, Safe Community, and Cultural Expression. A number of respondents also expressed frustration around actions/activities perceived as being unhelpful, prohibitive or countering good relations, and a number of these relate to a wider perception around 'the politics of place' and a perceived polarising impact of unionism vs nationalism. Planning for good relations could become more consultative and the allocation of good relations funds could be awarded on agreement between Council and communities on where it needs to go, and less dependent on 'good application'.

Children and Young people

Many respondents expressed a desire for a greater emphasis on programmes, projects and services for young people as the next/future generation, via youth / community, education and church sectors. One response identified the need for supportive and critical civic leadership spaces for young Protestants. Many respondents requested further shared education and integrated opportunities for primary and post primary children and young people.

Shared Community

The emphasis in the survey responses focused on 'bringing people together' using common interests to build capacity and opportunity for cross community activities. Local neighbourhood action, possibly through localised neighbourhood renewal projects could also facilitate building cross community relationships. There was also a desire for a greater sense of a shared community within housing areas.

Suggestions are also made which suggest a desire for supported targeted approaches whereby groups are encouraged and supported to reach beyond their areas or groups. They would be more comfortable coming together through programmes based on bringing people together, and including those who would not ordinarily come together. This included education and learning opportunities.

‘Fund normal community activities but support them to reach out across local boundaries. It has to be built at interfaces - not among the great and the good. Fund sport to make a difference etc.’

Respondents have also spoken of the need to integrate community, in ways which connect with social inclusion and equality by including ethnic minorities, women, and the LGBTQ+ communities. Respondents identified a range of approaches, world café, myth busting, training and education, anti-poverty work and a community navigator.

Respondents’ suggestions reflect a desire for inclusive shared community, which is intentionally cross community and inclusive of other and all diverse groupings in the area.

Safe Community

It was also suggested that intercultural awareness is a two-way street. Therefore, increased understanding within the majority communities could be promoted through their participation in awareness raising work that highlighted ethnic minority and LGBTQ+ peoples’ experiences and women’s safety within communities.

Cultural Expression

Actions to address contentious elements of cultural displays, parading, flag flying, marking of territory and ‘identity badging’ are suggested by a number of respondents.

Programmes exploring culture, its dynamics and traditions and valuing cultural identity, traditions/influence are suggested. These should not reduce cultural identity or reinforce a need for anyone to ‘culturally identity as one thing or the other’. This includes exploring what is culture, how it develops, cultural literacy as well as the diverse cultural traditions.

Some respondents propose a more positive appreciation of Ulster Scots in some areas and the promotion of three languages alongside each other (English/Irish/Ulster Scots).

There are suggestions for more cultural work and opportunities to develop awareness around cultures as well as opportunities for safe discussions around sectarianism, racism and unconscious bias.

These suggestions highlight the importance of inter-cultural work and opportunities for all to showcase cultural identity, and targeted actions which include cultural/community spaces for ethnic minority community.

Summary Quantitative and Qualitative Good Relations Survey

In the context of the attitudes to good relations, the NILT 2020-21 data set recorded that in Causeway coast and glens Borough council area, 43% felt relations had improved in the last 5 years and 40% that they would continue to do so in the next 5 years. The 2023 Good Relations Survey undertaken for the audit highlighted the following.

The key findings are:

- The three most common good relations issues identified in the area at this moment are sectarianism (80.3%), cultural diversity (61.8%) and racism (28%).
- A strong majority (79.6%) of people felt safe in their community, 12.1% did not.
- On whether they felt their identity was respected 52.2% responded Yes.
- On whether their identity was not respected, 31.2% of people who answered this question said sometimes and 16.6% of people said it was not respected
- Addressing the legacy of the past is really important to 46.5% of those who responded to the question, 42% said it is important. For 10% it is not that important.

The top 10 key issues are:

(Key priority issues identified by 40 or more than 40 people).

1. Shared and/or integrated education .
2. Cross community work.
3. Feeling safe in the area you live in.
4. Local people having an influence and voice in decision making process and civic life.
5. Challenging discrimination (racism, sectarianism).
6. Cultural expression including cultural celebration, language, music, and arts.
7. Justice for the victims and survivors.
8. Paramilitary control.
9. Community Development.
10. Cost of living crisis.

In response to Q.10 respondents identified key interventions to be made with young people and children. They also identified how common issues, local neighbourhood work, community education and training could bring people together and contribute to a shared community. Other themes identified included broadly based integration work. In terms of cultural expression, they identified as problematic the marking of territory and as positive the potential to increase understanding in Ulster Scots and the Irish language, cultures and traditions.

Summary of Good Relations Consultations

The thematic, area based, strategic partner, and councillor consultations have been extensively analysed as each meeting and interview took place. These are detailed in Appendix 2. They were then further analysed and mapped against the T: BUC aims. The consultations provides much of the evidence base for intervention as outlined in the next section on the key themes and mapping. A range of issues were raised at meetings and in the survey that cannot be directly addressed through the Good Relations Strategy. The summary of these issues is detailed below in terms of their links to other policies and practice. Further material is available in Appendix 2 at the end of each focus group and interview.

Links to Policy and Practice

The range of issues raised in meeting and on the survey that are not directly related to T:BUC but may none the less inform the conversation are summarised below. There was much frustration in evidence.

Challenges in Council related issues

- Loss of confidence in the commitment of council and elected representatives to work on social and economic issues with the community.
- Authentic and genuine consultation with community around big public spending decisions.
- More awareness of the need for structure around policy making.
- How do we get MLAs and councillors to listen to us?
- Council meetings needing to be more concise and welcoming of public assistance.
- Research international examples of participative democracy.
- Perception that the movement of council to Coleraine has left Limavady with less resources and attention.
- Councillors from diverse backgrounds.

Council funding issues

- Leases running out for local groups, Glens Estate Drop-in and Men's Shed.
- Perceptions of unfair distribution of resources from Council.
- 'Single identity area finds it difficult to access Good Relations Funding.
- Instability of funding.
- Application forms difficult to use.
- Payment to advertise on council site.
- High rental rates for council owned spaces.
- Could Council promote activities or centres for free?
- Target areas of need.
- Retrospective funding is problematic.
- Issues aggravated by insecure staff and project funding.
- Too costly to use Council facilities.

Needs and Service Issues include

- Street lighting, bin collection for older people.
- Transport - to increase access and connections between villages and towns.
- Littering on outskirts of town.

Housing and Health

- More social housing needed.
- Men's mental well-being issues prevalent.
- Voluntary organisations providing regular care for elderly people: preventing loneliness and health problems.

Community building issues and needs

- Workshop activities - for those of 55+ years plus to share skills, improves mental well-being, needs funding for materials etc.
- Not enough infrastructure.
- Voluntary group providing tea and coffee on Saturday nights for young people leaving the bars.
- Local people finding ways to connect with people who are suffering.

Community Planning

- Community Planning Review - Holistic and inter-connected needs and responses are required.
- Effects on communities of issues such as poverty, cost of living etc.
- Health and Wellbeing Services, Multi-Disciplinary Services,
- Access to a range of services for young people and adults,
- Issues around housing, transport, local peoples' needs.

Infrastructure

- Develop and support drop in for mental well-being support.
- Kids drop-in centre after school.
- Promote volunteering locally.

CAUSEWAY COAST AND GLENS BOROUGH COUNCIL KEY THEMES

Based on the consultations, survey, and the policy and planning frameworks reviewed, the key themes that emerge across the survey and consultations emphasise shared spaces, developing young people, addressing some difficult issues, the need for regeneration and integration, and challenging racism, negative attitudes and behaviours and sectarianism. These are set out below in terms of the four key T:BUC aims. Case studies illustrate two of these themes. In addition, other issues that were articulated by respondents have been mapped into other policies and practices so that they may be addressed outside of the Good Relations Strategy. A number of key delivery principles identified across the consultations and survey are indicated. The good relations issues have been mapped to the action plan, detailing complementarity, capacity building and good relations outcomes.

Supporting children and young people in good relations work and in integration work. In terms of community towns and villages there is an opportunity to develop shared spaces. This sits alongside increasing annoyance about difficult issues such as painted kerb stones, murals, flags and territory marking which need to be addressed. Culture, traditions and global diversity were also identified as area with considerable potential to contribute to a shared community. Community education and training to better understand the dynamic of culture, and traditions, good relations and building welcoming communities was also a common theme.

The findings strongly suggest that those, in consultation meetings, and those who responded to the survey had a view of Community Relations /Good Relations issues as being heavily influenced by the immediacy of cost-of-living pressures. The crisis is negatively affecting their families, children, communities, constituents, service users and partner groups. The community response to Covid -19 energised local groups to meet their community needs, building and renewing cross-community links, friendships, and mutual respect. It also drew attention to the value of community groups as an essential infrastructure in times of need. The repeated call for a new civic voice reflected a perceived frustration with the limited scope for local people to have an influence and voice in decision making processes and in civic life. That call came from communities, councillors, and statutory partners. It was accompanied by the call again from across the councillors, communities, and statutory agencies that the understanding of good relations must be broader and encompass community planning, community development, regeneration in order to address the challenges they identified and create a shared community. This approach is in keeping with the idea of social peace processes that require bottom up and multi- sectoral and agency approaches to cementing peace and also action to address inequality.³⁸ The six integrated strands of reconciliation as articulated by Johnston McMaster take a comparable approach. These include the socio-economic, socio-political, socio-environmental strands.³⁹ These linkages are outlined in the combined analysis of the community consultation and linked to the policy framework, local perspective, and local planning context based on the survey findings and tables in Appendices 1 and 2.

Key Themes Children and Young People

Many respondents expressed a desire for a greater emphasis via, more programmes, projects and services for young people as the next/future generation, via youth / community, education and church sectors. It has been suggested that young people should be enabled to come together more easily, on a cross community basis, around shared and common interests e.g., sport, and music. Suggestions also include focused projects and educational opportunities which enable young people to develop greater understanding for cultural diversity and equality. One response identified the need for supportive and critical civic leadership spaces for young Protestants. Many respondents requested further shared education and integrated opportunities for primary and post primary children and young people. The need to support children and young people to live in a culturally diverse, pluralistic society in which there is respect for all cultural traditions and backgrounds, was also identified.

³⁸ John D. Brewer, Peace processes: a sociological approach (Cambridge, 2010).

³⁹ Johnston McMaster 'What does reconciliation look like in a larger context'.

These points suggest that respondents regard inclusive approaches as being a part of creating community.

'Inter community, inter town, cross cultural approach inclusive of BME also'

'Integration of ethnic/religious minorities approaches from their community to local groups. I know living where I do that religious sectarianism happens, but what about other religions?'

The case study below illustrates how an environmental project can have an impact on developing relationships between schools and children and young people from different community backgrounds.

Case Study BYTES & Garvagh People's Forest: West Bann Forest Sessions

"The Over Story, My Story, The Under Story"

Purpose: To explore good relationships in the context of the history of the forest and the entanglement of relationships in the (natural) world.

Over-story: above us, in the trees, what we can see and imagine.

Under-story: under our feet, under the earth that we don't know everything about. Our past and our families' past, the land and its entanglements.

My Story: where the two connect in me and I choose which steps to take through the forest and which relationships are nurturing for me.

Between October '21 and April '22 15 young people aged between 10 and 13 from Bytes Coleraine from 9 different local schools across the CCGBC area were brought together for 3 sessions in Garvagh People's Forest to explore ways of understanding identity and relationship building in connection with nature. The project was framed in three parts; Over Story - the trees and their leaves and fruits, Under Story - under our feet, the roots of the trees and our communities, nurturing and entangled, My Story - where the two connect in me and I choose which steps to take through the forest and which relationships are nurturing for me.

We noticed that it really took some time for the young people to get into a different rhythm. They arrived all hyped up and excited and it was like they'd forgotten how to be calm if it wasn't in front of the tv. We saw and they did too, how there was a change of energy and focus over time, and in the end even the most hyper kids were really centred and calm and didn't really want to leave. That state of calm allowed them to really connect with the forest and open up to different kinds of conversations than they would have normally. It definitely was a strengthening experience in terms of good relations. It made us think that all our good relations programmes should be either focused around non-sectarian sports (like our ice hockey project) or in nature.

Key Themes Children and Young people

- Youth leadership.

- Learning about and experience of diversity, pluralism and cultural identities.
- Break down the barriers between the different clubs.
- Preparing for cultural diversity.
- Include disadvantaged young people and those in hard-to-reach groups.

Shared Community

Actions and activities envisaged would appear to reflect a strong desire for many more opportunities and programmes that 'bring people together' with many suggestions being made for greater 'cross-community' opportunities and cross community initiatives/programmes/projects which cater for all age groups around shared /common interests: sports, arts, local history, and nature/environment. Thus,

'more joint projects involving communities that usually do not come together.'

This included advocating targeted approaches whereby groups are encouraged and supported to reach beyond their areas, groups and comfort zones. Education and training enabling people from Protestant and Catholic backgrounds to learn about each other was suggested. Through positive encounter projects and cross-community community education programmes new relationships could develop. Such attempts to integrate envisaged an inclusive shared community, which is intentionally cross community and inclusive of all from all diverse backgrounds. This suggests that respondents regard inclusive approaches as being a part of creating community.

In the promotion of shared space, the work could also consider and overcome the dilemma identified through the Good Relations Indicators 2020 Report – the need to build on places that the community perceives shared such as libraries, shopping centres and leisure centres and parks; and also, the need to counter feelings of being less safe - in town centres and in attending events in schools, cultural and sports places. At same time young people feel that they can be open about their identity in schools, and it is important not to undermine their sense of safety and identity but to build on it.

It was hoped and indeed anticipated that the Good Relations Programme would want to work with the existing infrastructure at community level to maximise the potential for common interests, links and relationships to engage on a cross community basis, to create a safe and shared society. The Shared Spaces potential is illustrated through the following Old Courthouse case study.

CASE STUDY: Relationships and Shared Spaces: The Courthouse Shared Space Creative Hub – Bushmills Village

Background to the Programme

In 2016 Enterprise Causeway purchased the Old Courthouse, a derelict Grade B1 listed building situated in the heart of Bushmills. with the long-term vision of restoring and developing the building, into a Creative Hub for the local community.

The shared space project received €7.8million of capital funding from the European Union's PEACE IV Programme with match-funding from the Department for Communities, Northern Ireland and the Department of Rural and Community Development, Ireland

The new facility, which is scheduled to open in Spring 2024 will include a coffee shop and retail space, as well as two large messy studios, workshop facilities and meeting rooms, providing a unique space where community, artisan makers and businesses can come together.

Running in parallel with the construction work is an Outreach Programme which focuses on building relationships, promoting opportunities, and providing support. Activities and workshops aim to bring people from all backgrounds, ages and abilities together, to learn, explore and acquire new skills and develop their interests in arts and crafts, heritage and artisan food.

The Twelve Wreaths of Christmas

One of our Community Outreach Initiatives was the Twelve Wreaths of Christmas Programme, which was an intergenerational programme designed to bring the local community together, to be creative, and explore their local heritage. Twelve local groups, including schools, community associations, church groups, early years, social enterprises, the Orange Order, youth and older people's groups participated in the programme.

Each organisation was supported to design and create their own 21-inch Christmas Wreath which represented their organisation. These workshops were held collectively over a three-week period and provided an opportunity for people to meet share ideas and build relationships. The Wreaths varied in their style and theme ranging from traditional Georgian to a Wreath made from an old lobster creel.

In early December, the Wreaths were placed at various locations, including community venues and local business premises, to form a walking trail around the village. Leaflets were produced detailing the trail, the wreaths and the organisations involved, which we placed in local businesses, so that the trail could be accessed at any time. In addition, two local historians facilitated heritage walking tours of the trail, providing opportunities for the group participants to contribute experiences, stories and facts about their organisations, their Wreaths, Christmas Traditions, and the local area. At the end of the Trail refreshments were served in the Parish Centre where everyone had the opportunity to continue discussions, catch up, or make new connections.

The feedback from the programme has been positive. People welcomed the opportunity to come together for a community initiative and for many groups it was the first time that they had been involved in a joint programme. They welcomed the intergenerational contact and people of all ages and interests learned aspects of the local heritage and Christmas traditions from around the world. It also provided a platform for people to ask questions about the heritage and formation of the various groups and for the members of these organisations to celebrate the valuable work they do and the services they provide in the community.

Key Themes Shared Community

- The development of a civic voice that can support and work with local groups across the Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council area.
- Memorials and inclusive remembering - addressing the legacies of the past. Inclusive remembering workshops with community groups.
- Building A United Community Fund & Participatory Budgeting.
- Positive media campaign, news articles, and Good Relations newsletter.
- Shared Spaces /Sharing Our Place Pride in Place – people. Involve active community groups in utilising common interests to create space that fosters engagement, interaction and relationships.
- Sharing Our Place Pride in Place – small capital works. Physical improvements and regeneration.
- Shared Environmental: T: BUC Trees Project and Forest project.
- Community capacity building: Civic Voice. Overarching group encompassing the experience and expertise of community and local business. Map networks and forums existing in the 7 DEAs to identify gaps and opportunities for collaboration with colleagues.
- Community/Good Relations Education and Training. Community education to promote understanding of the dynamic of culture as well as the traditions that exist within communities. This could include education/awareness around history, heritage and culture, and inter-cultural education which focuses on developing awareness around cultural traditions as well as the evolving nature of cultural identity and cultural dynamics of society.
- Succession planning for Good Relations work. Good /Community Relations Training and Education to include facilitation/mediation/training. Developing skills that are important to provide the skills to deliver good relations work and also be applicable to other areas of people's lives and work in general. This could also include focused training around 'remembering the past', as well as 'a social peace' and the social justice issues within society related to a deepening of peace, and the development of 'relationships' and structures.

Safe Community

The issues identified around safe communities referred to the safety on the streets for all groups, in particular young people, women and asylum seekers and refugees. The strategic partners and the council leadership were identified as key partners in continuing to support bonfire management and in addressing the marking of territory. It was recognised that local communities are also critical to resolving these issues. The integration and safety of asylum seekers, refugees and migrants - who are a small population in the borough, was identified as important in all meetings. The need to counter negative and extreme views and fears was considered to be important. Young people in particular drew attention to how experiencing a global diversity can enrich lives.

Key Themes Safe Community

- Strategic Partners- Bonfire management and protocols for cultural celebrations and events, with organisers and relevant bodies. Address increased public annoyance and intimidation associated with loyalist and republican groups and with kerb painting, flags, and murals.
- Integration of Asylum Seekers and Refugees and people of ethnic minority background. Myth-busting in relation to new communities. Sharing diversity through working with new communities, schools, and communities. Community integration, and education and training. Signpost and support asylum seekers, refugees, and newcomers. Develop a one stop shop or Community Navigator for information, support and signposting and to ensure better co-ordination and information sharing between support organisations.

Key Themes Cultural Expression

Those consulted recognised the importance of creating two-way experiences of diversity in schools, with young people and in communities. The need to address rising tensions of both racism and sectarianism was identified. History and heritage offer community and museum led opportunities to promote understanding and to address difficult and different narratives. The capacity of groups to engage in cross community relationship building remains an issue and interim interventions may be necessary for some groups to take the next step.

- Exploring Culture and Diversity in schools; offer range of opportunities in person and on line to primary schools. Culture café, small worlds. Refugee week and various festivals and religious holidays.
- Develop participation opportunities for people who have newly arrived.
- Address perceptions of rising tensions of sectarianism and racism.
- Hear Here: culture and language- culture and language of the two main traditions in Northern Ireland.
- Understand our history and the different historical narratives and respect the diversity of our cultural expressions, include multiple narrative and outreach activity, addressing difficult history.
- Developing capacity through engaging loyalist and hard to reach communities. Opening up single identity events to a broader, more diverse participation. Single identity work with women and rural groups, with a civic voice that is inclusive, diverse and independent.

Overarching Good Relations Themes

- Enhance partnership and collaborative working
- Re-brand and develop and implement a wider understanding of good relations at a council corporate level, in the context of the community plan and community development and regeneration.

Key Delivery Principles

These are the key delivery principles identified across the consultations and survey.

- Co-design and delivery through local partners, particularly at community level, in keeping with Community Development Strategy.
- Active citizenship, partnership and locally identifying priorities, in keeping with Community Development Strategy.
- Delivery across the 7 DEAs.
- Network and share learning.
- Complementarity and build sustainable capacity.

MAPPING THE THEMES

The following tables indicate how the key and overriding themes and the principles for delivery have been mapped against the T: BUC aims. This is evidenced, with elements of the capacity building needs identified, the complementarity to policy, and Good Relations project outcomes included. (Tables 17 GOOD RELATIONS THEMES MAPPED TO T: BUC KEY AIMS CAUSEWAY COAST AND GLENS BOROUGH COUNCIL). Included below is a summary table. (Table 16)

APPENDIX 1 GOOD RELATIONS SURVEY QUALITATIVE RESPONSES BY T: BUC THEME

Q6 IF GOOD RELATIONS WORK IS MAKING A DIFFERENCE, WHAT DOES/MIGHT THAT DIFFERENCE LOOK LIKE? FOR EXAMPLE, HOW WOULD YOUR LOCAL STREETS AND NEIGHBOUR INTERACTIONS BE?

Children and Young People

I don't think enough is being done to encourage both communities to mix. Particularly with young people socialising outside of schools.

Children and young people working together and respecting one another. Communities open to having other cultures and identifies within them.
Young persons not poisoned by what has happened in the past.

We need to draw away from the past and look to the future with fresh ...youthful ideas.

Early intervention is key. The young, who do not discriminate have as much interaction with diverse communities of all sorts as possible, taking understanding and tolerance forward with them.

Children from different backgrounds can mix together easily and comfortably.
Where I live there is some antisocial behaviour among youths - they have nowhere safe to meet and congregate

Better knowledge and values for each other beliefs. A Better future for the next generation coming up in the community.

Shared Community

More cohesive inter-generational community
Good relations work allows us to promote inter community relations in a Limavady
I teach many students from many different ethnic backgrounds; their ability to interact with the 'locals' is vital to successful integration.
Getting better locally.
Changed dramatically in last 10 years, normal now to meet different cultures on the streets
Respect for each other
Not homogeneous.
Single identity community housing, social, sports clubs etc would move purposefully towards integration
All genders classes and creeds respected in the community
More involvement of people from different backgrounds within groups
Having events that bring people together and not being selective to a particular Culture.
Community assistance groups, neighbourhood watch, community unity schemes, e.g., community gardens. Encourage interaction and respect for property and neighbours.
Good cross community work
In Coleraine area there is no interactions between groups. Any group keeps separated by other group or individuals.
It would look like increased integration at the economically and socially poorest levels. Less of an issue, the greater the income
More courteous, respectful, tolerant and working together for common goals in terms of progressing wider issues, Health and Wellbeing, Education etc
More accepted shared spaces and events that are reflective of the wider community

Think it is making a difference for those who are working in the sector but not sure how much of an impact it is having in the wider community. Think there is still a lack of community cohesion and no sense of community in some areas. Neighbours are just people who live next door with no or little interaction. Having mixed areas where people can meet and chat.

More integrated community

More shared spaces and activities not just in town centres

Anything that makes everyone feel welcome in the area

mixed community groups gives opportunities for both sides of the divide to meet/mix

Respectful & open minded

Equality for all. No side made to feel uncomfortable in their own neighbourhood

There would be more honest and open conversations where people wouldn't be so nervous/defensive about the fact that it's normal to disagree with people and for people to be different. There would also be more self-reflection and honesty.

The flying of The Union Jack and Tricolour to designate religious areas should be discouraged

Better involvement with all the community, communities getting together and connecting

No flags

We would have moved beyond the white right-wing values so evident across our community. Difference would be celebrated from an early age

Ordinary people in ordinary day life forming friendships- not contrived feel good, cosmetic, contrived funded photo opportunities to meet demands or outputs of the funding body.

CCG Council would not make decisions based on their inherent unionist sectarianism

People taking part in cross community activities an integrated society

Good relations events create neutral space for people from all backgrounds to meet, learn and grow. This can only be a good thing. It will make people more tolerant and knowledgeable.

Good communications system. sharing and caring for each other better interaction between groups

Well attended cross community social occasions

There would be more joint projects with different religions, nationalities and races all involved.

Be very good

Normality with no barriers applying - people living with acceptance to each other.

Getting together with your neighbours for a barbecue/Street party at least once or twice a year

People agreeing better

Helping and mixing more

Streets would be improved greater mutual respect for cultural traditions and friendlier atmosphere

Getting together with your neighbours for a barbecue/Street party at least once or twice a year

People are interacting more with others and learning that we are all people no matter what our background is.

More work in the community

More communication between neighbours

More mixed and diverse population

A town that has no divisive symbols e.g., flags, banners etc. A place that anyone can live or visit and not feel that their religious beliefs will threaten their quality of life.

Housing localities not dominated by particular religions, decked in flags of allegiance/political belief. Progress could be measured by more accepting communities with less allegiance flags of locality

No flags of painted kerbs and no parades

Go into areas that you never were allowed to as a child

No flags of any kind allowed.

More interaction with different cultures

Less focus on religious aspect of things and celebrate how we are the same

Respectful amiable behaviour towards all neighbours regardless of race, religion, country of origin, sexual orientation, gender identity, social class and age. Regarding others as having more in common than first meets the eye.

More neighbourly concerns

I have a good relationship with my close neighbours and some of them are Polish and Lithuanian, there is a good mix of different religions also

More integrated schools in the area, encouraging acceptance of people from different religions and cultural backgrounds to come together.

People being treated as equals- issues that make the community together and finding out what is important to each community. getting them together under shared arrangements and also education. acceptance of the diversity

Communicate relationship

Shared education, no flags anywhere - especially in schools

More integration

Integrated shared community events

Safe Community

People would feel safe to walk or drive anywhere in the Borough and feel comfortable in culturally diverse groups and situations.

It would mean that people of any background would feel safe moving around the borough, and not be at risk of being verbally or physically abused just because of their religion/culture/ skin colour/ political views etc

Streets would feel safer

Everyone feels welcome. Everyone feels welcome and settled where they live. No-one lives in fear of intimidation

A lot more peaceful.

People being able to live their lives without fear of sectarianism/racism

Streets would be a lot friendlier, no/little conflict or contention

Everyone feels safe and secure to walk, cycle, drive in our town centres

Less hate crime

Less sectarianism and racism, both verbal and physical.

Research surveys and PSNI reports show that there are less incidents of racism and hate-based race crimes.

Less hate incidents/crime, more cultural exchange and competence, more openness to all diversity in our community

Fear of diversity is gone. Respect for all race and religion is actively working.

Cultural Expression

We would all have some understanding of different cultures and religions, and we would welcome and celebrate difference.

There would be a better political environment. Our politics continues to focus on the green and orange rather than the real bread and butter issues. Culture awareness and mutual respect for each other.

Less political graffiti and flags

No graffiti! No tattered flags and emblems! No kerb painting!

No flags policy. Remove all paintwork

It would be reflected in the numbers attending good relation events. There would be a lessening of segregated areas by getting rid of flags, murals, kerb painting and other sectarian displays. There would be an increase in visibility of good relations symbols and values with local residents involved in how they would like to reflect that visibility within their own communities.

Flags should be removed soon after the 12th

The post-Brexit negotiations around the NI Protocol have been hijacked by loyalists as used as a vehicle to inflame sectarian division. This is fuelled by BBC Nolan and media such as The Newsletter. Tribalism is showcased by flying of Union flags and paramilitary flags. Good Relations work will directly counter the narrative by the DUP and LCC and show that we can live together peacefully.

Address the issue of discrimination against the unionist community

The confidence to be who you are so that you show respect & receive respect in return.

The acceptance of each other's culture, realising we can be different, but we can also work together....to obtain the best for our people and culture a sense of empowerment

Not having the Council paying lip service to good relations whilst being insensitive in its flying of a flag on council property every day of the year

1. It would mean that persons would not erect offensive posters, slogans etc on public property.

2. It would mean that decisions would not revert to orange /green issues or be treated in that way. Decisions should be based on need, and what is best for all residents/visitors.

3.Events, festivals & sporting events would be treated respectfully by all sides and the right to join in or not join in should be respected.

On the whole they are good locally although a street full of GAA flags is a bit overwhelming for me who am English!

People feel safe to walk or drive anywhere in the Borough, free from any sort of hate inspired prejudice. A reduction in territorial marking. A greater understanding of the needs and experiences of people from other cultures, whether they are from the indigenous community or newcomers.

Not having my journey delayed most weekends in the "marching season " by band parades which are usually intimidating, especially when collections are "invited "

Streets without intimidating flags every July. More integrated schools. A Pride festival or celebration every summer. More safety initiatives for women (from community workers, NOT police). A more culturally diverse roster of councillors.

The difference would be a reduction in flying of flags that create bad community relations; a reduction in the duration of the cultural marching season so that it does not go on for weeks and weeks and weeks from April to August; a reduction in the hate generated by the annual bonfire season; an end to the divisive and incredibly expensive British military air show that is funded by Council at ratepayers expense.

People would stop coming out to be offended, instead stay away and let that group enjoy their culture.

The Good Relations programme should showcase how Irish and British (Northern Irish) people can have different heritage. And that migrants and refugees are welcome.

Storytelling, Re-enactments, Key Institutions/talks [Diversity talks] people would in general be more open to difference whatever that might be.

Streets would be improved greater mutual respect for cultural traditions and friendlier atmosphere

Diverse

Better understanding of cultures.

Not subjected to Irish name plates on our streets and roads

Q7. CAN YOU SHARE AN EXAMPLE OF GOOD RELATIONS WORK THAT WAS IMPACTFUL OR THAT PREVENTED FURTHER CONFLICT OR DIVISION.

Children and Young People

Cultural diversity awareness programme with primary schools
Teaching children that diversity is a good thing - to be embraced & not feared. Initiatives that allow you to get to know the person behind the labels usually have a positive impact.
Ex-paramilitary members telling young people that sectarianism should be a thing of the past and that we should work together in the future
Youth work in Greysteel
Inclusive public spaces for very young children e.g., playgroups and nurseries work really well. Unfortunately, from 4-18 kids are then segregated and never learn about other histories and stories cross community social events for children and joint activities with primary schools from both denominations.
Work with young people
Work with school children to promote cultural diversity in a positive light
Schools from different religious backgrounds sharing lessons
Work in local schools across all communities
Shared education at secondary level
Limavady education
Shared education, game of three halves shared cultural events
Shared education in Further education. Non targeted cultural events like Steinbeck.

Shared Community

Dialogue is always a good starting point for Good Relations.
Sports. People generally showing kindness towards others of a different persuasion
One of the many ESOL programmes I teach - I try to include cultural and pastoral elements in addition to teaching the English language.
Our Reach project in a Portrushserves all in the community
The formation in Dungiven of Dungiven Community Restoration Group during COVID 3 years ago and gone from strength to strength working for both communities
Cross sectoral group projects like Peace IV has produced some legacy groups formed out of bonds made during the good relation work that took place such as Limavady Hens shed
We were asked to facilitate weekly sessions on good mental health and resilience for a group of participants that included both sides of the NI divide and overseas refugees. The group was designed to break down barriers and find common ground, share stories of resilience and develop an art project to celebrate resilience in all its forms. The resulting art is now on display at a local men's shed for all to see. Participants reported a greater understanding of difference; an increasing openness to accepting and respecting the journey of others.
Glenshane House used to host a lot of cross community activities that encouraged friendships that would not have been created otherwise because of the lack of opportunities to meet people from different backgrounds.
Local women's group interacting with group from different background. Sharing similar experiences.
Summer festival in Cushendall was attended by mixed cultures and everyone enjoyed it.
When I was growing up (in Yorkshire) we had a community garden that the whole street worked together on, and we had BBQs etc which encouraged friendship and respect for the gardens.
There has been significant Shared Education work across many schools/partnerships.

Good relations has occurred in the past when groups went away from both sides of the divide and learnt that we are all different but the same...take people out of N Ireland and go across to England...it doesn't matter what your religion is ...your still from N Ireland
 How well everyone pulled together through lockdown
 Courses for everyone
 Annual Halloween Festival
 all BCRC work
 Community groups starting up for all abilities and ages
 Cross community contact schemes
 Sing Club
 Working groups
 Mens Sheds- I have witnessed the slow but lasting integration of men from different community backgrounds, race and culture through regular and collective community work at the Mens Sheds
 Shared culture initiatives to help residents feel that they are more similar than they thought in terms of shared history/ religious backgrounds the art sculptures in local villages which brought beside members from all communities
 Community events which all cultures have enjoyed together have been beneficial and impactful.
 events to support new residents in the area. Making them feel welcome and allowing people to engage and learn from them.
 Welcoming refugees into a community setting and learning about their culture as well as showing them ours.
 Including broad sections of people to all events involving diversity
 Bringing the Churches together to discuss how to help the Asylum Seekers
 The cross-community work being undertaken in Rasharkin community by bringing all sides of the community together with common goals and hopes
 Queens Jubilee
 Lammas Fair and Maritime Festival North in Ballycastle
 Winter wellness

Safe Community

Working together to promote safety across the NC.

Cultural Expression

Mediations and public meetings to discuss contentious murals and bonfires in association with targeted training.
 Killywakey races in Kilrea a few years ago. Stopped protests at band parades
 Collective approach with council community NIHE, PSNI, and the Fire Service. Addressing the issues with bonfires. Multi agency approach inclusive if participants will always result in a better outcome
 Good bonfire management involvement with the local band community
 Flags or flag removal initiative
 The work of Glenshane Development Limited with the LOL and AOH.
 learning about other cultures and sharing understanding and knowledge
 Intervention and alternatives around bonfires is a positive and demonstrates leadership by local lodges and bands.
 Cross community attendance at a GAA game and a rugby game showing each other that a game is a game and how to appreciate the skills of the sports people.

Q10. WHAT TYPE OF ACTIVITIES, PROJECTS OR INTERVENTIONS WOULD YOU LIKE TO SEE AS PART OF A COUNCIL GOOD RELATIONS STRATEGY?

Children and Young People

More youth engagement

More programmes for teenagers. They are the future. More activities geared for teenagers...e.g., outdoor sportsskating, climbing basketball and tennis facilities.

Youth work & community development

More services for youths within the area - Geographically I am Ballymoney and there is limited provision for youngsters

More projects involving youths

Litter picks involving Catholic and Protestant youth together.

More playing areas for young children

More community integration, social clubs for adults...and teenagers. children's projects from both community

More cross community interaction for young people/schools etc

Continuing work with children from different background and church groups

Focused on young people and education. Opportunities for conversations on sensitive & controversial issues.

Youth club and school programmes. Greater integration of young people at a young age. Greater inclusion and acceptance of GAA sports which are widely participated by many young people in the council area. Work with local GAA clubs and create good relations.

More cross community work and educating today's youth about how far we have come as a country yet still have much more work to do.

All cultures being taught and acknowledged in schools, Irish language classes being more easily available Irish as an optional study in Catholic and protestant schools. Irish history included in school curriculum.

Projects which address and improve the critical analysis ability of young Protestants.

Better nightlife in small towns like Limavady, such as support for small bands and initiatives for young people to form bands. Music is a great connector, and live music nights offer the chance for people to congregate together despite their religious differences.

All Primary Schools should be integrated so that children learn at an early age that religion has no place in the modern World to divide society

Support integrated education

Integrated schools. Integrated youth clubs

Work with schools, both primary & secondary.

Integrated schools youth clubs etc

Elderly and youth projects

More inter-generational work

Shared Community

Council support for cross-community events

Cross community projects E.g., sports days, summer activities

Participation in events and projects that promote good relations through shared experiences and values.

Any project that could bring people together and challenge the separatism.

More crafts

ANYTHING THAT IS COMMUNITY BASED TO BRING PEOPLE OF ALL AGES / DIVERSITIES TOGETHER

Good neighbour schemes for elderly, unable. Community activity schemes such as converting a piece of waste land or bare grass into gardens. These are a great way to bring a community together.

Take suggestions from members of the public, possibly informal activities for all age groups and abilities - e.g., walks, talks, events, something which promotes interaction and discussion in areas of common interest, could be sport, music, drama etc

More financial support from Council for groups that bring people together.

More cross community activities

Any projects that simply bring people together

More cross community leisure and sporting events. A good example would be the park run events. They bring people from all walks of life... young /old /white /black /walkers/ runners. This is only an example the activity could be anything.

Use the environment and nature as an opportunity to bring people to create good relations, a common goal.

More outdoor events

Arts events

Community gardens

Fund normal community activities but support them to reach out across local boundaries. It has to be built at interfaces - not among the great and the good. Fund sport to make a difference etc.

Greater networking face to face

More joint projects involving communities that usually do not come together

Neighbourhood Regeneration through simple things like litter picking, tidying of areas and promoting goodwill through sustainability not wastefulness at all levels.

In the past there were projects that included visits to places abroad to reflect on the impact of conflict. These are usually hard hitting and great good relations for participants from different communities who spend the time away together. They build good relations that then continues.

Fun events. Nothing too serious. We don't need to learn more history. Events which encourage friendships and for us to see each other as friends, not enemies.

Craft or Storytelling event. Making differences human and relatable to reinforce commonalities. Perhaps community creation of public artwork that all can claim a part in

Develop relationships with the hard-to-reach communities with an emphasis on real alternatives - Get this cohort onboard and the rest will fall into line. It's wasted energy and resources providing the same projects with the same people if nothing is moving forward
Meeting/planning together re projects. Agreeing to disagree without conflict
Promotion of local history / community life using the resources of the library service and council's community development team

Political parties might not be able to get on but that doesn't mean integration of young people and school children isn't possible.

More LGBTQIA+-friendly initiatives. I have never seen this being done in the borough and there isn't even a proper Pride festival. Look to Derry and Belfast for inspiration. To me it feels like CCG Council have never done anything to support the LGBT community.

Community support initiatives for women's safety - perhaps a few sessions could be done within men's community groups to educate them on women's safety issues (as opposed to teaching women how to keep themselves safe). The onus is not on women to protect themselves.

Cross border initiatives

Educational projects to teach tolerance and respect.

Social adult club

Sporting activities are very good for integration, an all sports activity day ... from hockey to Hurling, Rugby to Gaelic Football.

Resources should be shared equally

More availability of local community hall

Bringing people together

Create cross community clubs, with significant funding to encourage participation from both sides. Friends don't fight, it's the unknown that fuels fear and mistrust.

Street party/barbecue; walking group within our estate; visit older residents to check that they are ok

Organising events that would make people of different cultures interact together

More kids activities. Locally .less expensive for activities also. Less mixed schools way too many in town it's madness .more mixed younger interaction activities groups, also for adults too .more elderly day centres and volunteers for elderly

More opportunities for families to interact and do fun activities together. I think that if we teach our children to mix with others when we are with them hopefully it will carry on throughout their lives.

More cross community events and info

Integration of all ages. The emphasis seems to be mainly on young people and I understand that. However, some older people 40's plus are very set in their opinions of other religions, races etc.

Cross community activities

Cross Community Work

Mixed projects

Mixing across all age bands

More projects for men

Inter-generational , supporting migrants , work with young people out of school in informal settings

Things that bring people together regardless of religion & race

Multi-cultural events

More groups where our religious differences don't impinge on our friendships

Projects to engage , support and include members of the LGBTQIA+ community Increasing sporting venues. Increasing social venues.

More funded programmes to bring people together from different backgrounds and communities, ensuring that they have a safe space to speak and are respected while doing so

Continue with cross communication workshops and have more groups encouraging all religions to come together.

Activities like our past our peace project, social outings to Derry walls, Battle of the Boyne Bloody Sunday, & siege museum and the museum, Famine village in Ballyliffen. Learning about local Forts around the area and the history of Newton about different cultural backgrounds and interventions with the immigrants. Trip to France for the history of the battle of the war. Trip to Poland to learn the history of the salt mines.

Move beyond taking groups of older and/or retired people away. We need to challenge communities more and be prepared to talk openly and honestly.

Greater understanding of older people's needs and age friendly strategy with core funding to back this up focus groups, community meetings, reaching out to the professionals and members in the community to come together. we have a walking group open to the all the community and how the people of that who would not normally socialise together have come together and look out for each other.

Community week activities.

Support our housing estate activities, money for a bouncy castle and a chip van, or a street party to bring everyone out. For people to plan it together. I think people are more inclined to speak to the neighbours in housing estates that are traditionally council estates because they are close together, shared parking and gardens next to one another. We live in a housing development and people wave at one another and disappear in to their homes. We need a reason to get out and talk together!

Positive news articles proactively issued by Council to challenge the negative/ harmful rhetoric often communicated on social media - it's not enough to let people make up their own mind when only one (negative) view is expressed & not counteracted local community needs, and if this is single identity then so be it, as a better understanding of your community needs are needed before you can engage with others

A Community Hub would be very useful

There is not an arts/community centre in Ballycastle. It is badly needed.

More investment in community events/spaces

Warm rooms and more focus on mental health.

Key institutions involved in talks, debates.

Cross-community and multi-cultural activities

Multicultural events

Inter community, inter town, cross cultural approach inclusive of BME also.

Integration of ethnic/religious minorities, approaches from their community to local groups
I know living where I do that religious sectarianism happens, but what about other religions?

Increased awareness about ethnic & cultural inclusion.

Multicultural events

A celebration of each other's achievements, identity and cultures no matter what religion is what is needed and less focus on the past.

Longer term cross border projects with shared outcomes.

More opportunities for intercultural contact, including education events using the World Cafe format. A return to prejudice awareness work and myth busting sessions, use local press and social media outlets to tell good news stories and share accurate information about the services offered to asylum seekers. Linkage with poverty mitigation

More opportunities to meet and support immigrants - I haven't seen anything in Limavady being done to welcome our Ukrainian immigrants and show them community support link, join up the activities of various voluntary groups working with refugees and asylum seekers. avoid duplication stream line funding, Create a Community Navigator post to sign post ethnic groups, help with formal applications.

More time and resources spent on our ethnic communities. Continued and consistent ESOL provision.

Food and cultural exchange projects. I believe that sharing food is an important integration tool. Learning about each other's cultural through participatory projects works e.g., art, media, growing etc

A Safe Community

Public safety work, building understanding for minorities both race & sexuality etc

Community support initiatives for women's safety - perhaps a few sessions could be done within men's community groups to educate them on women's safety issues (as opposed to teaching women how to keep themselves safe). The onus is not on women to protect themselves.

Cultural Expression

More direct activities to address structural and unconscious bias, training in cultural competency, the promotion of safer bonfires, the reduction of territorial marking.

Visits to other (different backgrounds) areas for community reps, volunteers, residents to break down misconceptions/barriers

More interactions and events with different groupings

More Ulster Scot Irish language activities and Irish heritage project such as the rich history and heritage of music our area has

Language and cultural events for all citizens

Having events and making sure that all cultures must be catered for. I was at two last year and when it came to visiting the Catholic/Nationalist museums/murals etc both events ran out of time. Bad planning or good planning depends.

Street signs in Irish / English and Ulster Scot, to reflect the shared culture of area all bonfires replaced by beacons

I do believe that the erection of offensive material should be challenged, posters , graffiti etc. I know this can be dangerous , but if unchallenged then our youth just learn it is ok to spread hate and untruths. These actions cause hurt and fear. Apologies, I have no actions as to how to do this but talking/conversation/listening always helps.

I would like to see more community events which celebrates all cultures not just orange and green and that our young people can get something out of and enjoy.

Regulation of bonfires

Less parades

More family events and awareness days to show all nationalities

Showcasing culture. There was a great multi-cultural event at Flowerfield during the summer a few years ago. this was great to experience activities and people from different cultures and their traditions.

More intercultural activity

Projects that provide education that is OK to be Protestant and Irish and have a Scottish / British heritage. We can embrace the rich diversity of Irishness without the sectarianism of the Orange Order.

Cultural celebrations and interventions in anti-social behaviour

more inclusion events to celebrate culture

Events where different cultures take a dish to share during a night of food, song and dance. A place for the ethnic groups to call their own and for locals to access diverse cultures in the area.

Removal of flags from primary schools. Should be disallowed by Dept of Education.

Team building, cultural traditions shared through groups those difficult conversations of the past shed in safe place in a relaxing mindfulness way

Targeted, specific work where tensions prevail
